HARVEY O'ROURKE STRUCK BY TRUCK

Six-Year-Old Runs Into Path of Vehicle and Succumbs Before Reaching Hospital.

Death brought a sudden end to the joyous play of two little boys, aged 6 and 7 years old, Friday afternoon when one was struck down by a truck and died on the way to Grady hospital, and the other was drowned while swimming at Maddox park. Fifteen other persons were injured during the afternoon in and near Atlanta in motor or traffic accidents.

Harvey Buckner O'Rourke, 6 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. O'Rourke, 616 Jones avenue, was struck and fatally injured when he ran out from behind a passing automobile into the path of a trailer-truck driven by O. M. Duffy, of Carrollton, at Ashby street, near North avenue, at about 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The death of the O'Rourke child brought the year's motor fatalities to 28 to date. His death was the first in July.

A passing motorist picked up the O'Rourke boy and took him to Grady hospital, but the child was dead upon arrival. Mr. Duffy stayed at the scene of the accident until police arrived.

Child Drowned.
Gordon Pruitt, 7-year-old son of the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Pruitt, pastor of the Bellwood Baptist church, was drowned in the Maddox park swimming pool Friday afternoon while an older sister and brother screamed frantic calls for help.

The three children, Clara, 10, Spencer, 8, and Gordon, left the home at 806 Marietta street at about 2:30 o'clock to go swimming while their father attended a funeral. The children said that Gordon could swim a little and that he had been sliding down a chute into water five or six feet deep. After sliding down the last time he strangled and, becoming panic stricken, yelled for help.

A life guard, Frank Roark, heard the screams and rushed to the little boy's aid. After five minutes of diving the body was recovered and placed in an ambulance which had been summoned.

When the call for an ambulance was put in to Grady hospital, it was relayed to the nearest ambulance, located at the West Side Funeral Home, which is operated by J. Woodrow Pruitt, 20, oldest brother of the drowned boy. He drove the ambulance to the park and was unable to find the body.

The child was taken to Crawford W. Long hospital and placed under a pulmonologist, but failed to revive. He is survived by his parents, two brothers and a sister.

LACK OF SECURITY BY COUNTY BLOCKS PWA ROAD OFFER

Program Approved by
Ickes Was Abandoned
When Necessity of Security
Became Known.

It appeared Friday that the $1,154,000 loan and grant Fulton county road program approved Thursday by Public Works Administrator Ickes was something that the county could not get because it has no security to offer for $807,800 of the total which would come as a loan.

County officials were puzzled over the announcement of Secretary Ickes but after a day of pondering most of them agreed that the secretary was approving something which had been sought more than a year ago before the county learned that security for the loan must be put up.

Walter C. Hendrix, chairman of the public works committee of the county board, recalled that an ambitious road program was mapped out last year and submitted to the PWA but the application was not pushed when it was learned that security for the loan had to be put up to get the application through.

As soon as that fact was made known to the commissioners they abandoned the idea but it is apparent that the PWA didn't and has approved the application if the county can comply with the regulations, which it can't.

Ralph Pharr, acting county attorney, was of the same belief. Mr. Pharr said the projects approved Thursday were included in the big program of last year.

Abandoned Plan.
It was pointed out that the county has put up its highway certificates to obtain a loan and a grant to remodel the Fulton tower and had to abandon a plan to remodel the almshouse because it had no security to give the PWA a security of loan.

Project 24 Thursday include the widening and repaving of part of Moreland avenue from Fair street to McDonough road, widening and repaving of the Atlanta-Fairburn road from the city limits to the county line.

LANGER MUSTERS ASSEMBLY AIDS TO UNSEAT OLSON

'Real Governor,' Guarded
by Troops Called Out by Foe, Orders Discharge of Officeholders.

BISMARCK, N. D., July 20.—(AP)—Definite announcement that Mrs. William Langer would assume her husband's place on the fall ballot, in event of his disqualification, and that investigation of the conviction of the ousted chief executive would start in the house of representatives tomorrow were two political bombshells thrown before a startled crowd here tonight.

BISMARCK, N. D., July 20.—(UP)—Bewildered North Dakota, with two "governors" and the state under martial law, awaited legislative action tonight to clarify or muddle further its political picture.

William L. Langer, "ousted" governor, mustered his powerful support in the state legislature for an impeachment attack on Lieutenant Governor Ole Olson, who acceded to the governor's chair by virtue of a supreme court order declaring him the "real governor."

Olson was unable to forestall the special session. He retaliated to be drawn into the argument over which "governor" is really governor. He ignored the order, being still in command under martial law established during discharge of several pro-Langer officeholders.

Adjutant General Neutral.
But Adjutant General Earl W. Searles, through whom the order would have to be executed, refused to be drawn into the argument over which "governor" is really governor. He ignored the order, being still in command under martial law established during discharge of several pro-Langer officeholders.

More than 1,000 farmers, ardent Langer supporters, ranged the streets of the little capital city, cheering Langer and threatening to "shoot Olson at sunrise" and to tar and feather the state supreme court.

The legislature, called to order in the skyscraper capitol building, was without a quorum in the senate when it convened. The lower house, overwhelmingly pro-Langer, had a quorum.

The farmers gathered outside, shouting "We want Bill!" The stern-faced Langer, convicted of soliciting political funds from federal relief workers, had promised them a five-year mortgage moratorium.

2 Prominent Atlantans Killed in Road Accident

J. P. WOMACK. WALKER T. LEE.

J. P. Womack, 62, prominent Atlanta manufacturer, and Walker T. Lee, 48, superintendent of the city auditorium, both well-known figures in the city's political and business life, were killed almost instantly in an automobile crash near Vicksburg, Miss., Friday morning.

Their automobile plunged from a bridge, 40 feet to the tracks of the Illinois Central railroad, where it was struck a few minutes later by a train. Mr. Womack was the driver of the car, which was carrying a party of five.

Mr. Womack was the senior member and president of J. P. Womack & Sons, Inc., manufacturers of store fixtures and came to Atlanta in 1921. He was a native of Columbus, Ga., and lived in Montgomery prior to coming here.

He was considered the confidential advisor of Mayor Key. Four years ago he prevailed upon the mayor to close the city hall.

OVERSEER FREED IN SLAPPEY DEATH NEAR FORT VALLEY

Lynn Fagan Admits
Slaying Former Peach
King After Argument
About Overseer's Wife.

FORT VALLEY, Ga., July 20.—(AP) A coroner's jury today found the death of George Slappey, 65, once Georgia's biggest peach grower, was "justifiable homicide" after his overseer, Lynn Fagan, testified he shot the planter because of attentions to Mrs. Fagan.

Fagan had been employed by Slappey for about 15 years and several years after the death of the second Mrs. Slappey the Fagans, both of whom are 38 years old, moved into the Slappey home.

The overseer testified his gun was discharged during a heated argument and when Slappey struck him and that he "did not mean to shoot."

Fagan told the jury he went to Slappey's room early today to ask the aged owner of the Sleepy Hollow farm to stop paying attentions to Mrs. Fagan and the argument followed.

Two negroes living on the farm gave corroborating testimony and Dr. E. W. Nelson, who also lives in the Sleepy Hollow home, said he heard a shot about 5:30 a.m. and went to Slappey's room. He met Fagan en route and the overseer told him he had shot the planter.

Sleepy Hollow was once regarded the largest peach-growing plantation in the center of the Georgia peach belt but Slappey announced he was leaving with efforts to market his product and pulled up his trees, destroying thousands of them and then engaged in general farming. He also owned a large tract of land in Macon.

The Sleepy Hollow farm was a mecca for many visitors who enjoyed the hospitality of its host.

Slappey's first wife was Miss Fannie Harris, who died two years after their marriage. His second wife was Miss Clara Vischer, of Montgomery, who died about 15 years ago.

Slappey was a brother of Mrs. Henry Maddox, of Atlanta, and Sterling Slappey, of Atlanta. Another sister, Mrs. R. C. Souder, lives in Macon. Mrs. J. F. Lambert, of Fort Valley, is a niece, and Henry L. Harris a brother-in-law.

ALLEN THREATENS TO REMOVE MAYOR OF NEW ORLEANS

Long-Walmsley Feud
Reaches New Stage.
Crescent City Officials
Are Defiant.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 20.—(AP)—After a conference in New Orleans yesterday with Senator Huey P. Long, Governor O. K. Allen today addressed a letter to Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, Superintendent of Police George Reger and District Attorney Eugene Stanley, all of New Orleans, serving notice that the state would seek their prosecution and removal from office unless they took action against gambling, vice and "other crime" which the governor charged was widespread in the city.

The letter, signed by both Governor Allen and Attorney-General Gaston L. Porter, apparently carried out Senator Long's radio announcement of early this week that "something is going to be done about the cesspool of iniquity in New Orleans."

Closure Required.
That announcement caused closure or curtailment of activities in gambling establishments in New Orleans and surrounding parishes, based on an inference that the state militia would be used for raiding purposes.

Governor Allen said today, however, that use of the militia was "not contemplated."

"It won't be necessary to use the militia," he said, after making public his letter to the New Orleans officials. He declined to discuss what steps were planned in the threatened ouster.

TEAR GAS BOMBS FLY IN SEATTLE

San Francisco Is Quiet;
Other Cities Witness
Growing Labor Unrest;
Johnson Describes Work.

By the Associated Press.

Violence roared over the strike-blighted industrial fronts yesterday with a wake of dead and injured as official announcements were made that the Pacific coast maritime strike would continue.

Battles between authorities and strikers occurred at Minneapolis, scene of a truck strike, and at Seattle, one of the crucial points in the longshoremen's strike.

One was killed, 48 were wounded and many injured in two separate battles in which there was shooting at Minneapolis. Governor Floyd B. Olson considered putting the city under martial law. Military lines were established about the market area and 3,400 national guardsmen were ordered to the city.

Seattle Battles.
The riots began as police started to convoy a truck loaded with merchandise.

In Seattle, 2,000 striking longshoremen engaged in a spectacular battle with 300 police led by the city's mayor, Charles L. Smith. The police used long-range tear gas guns to drive pickets from two piers. Several persons were injured by gas.

As Senator Robert F. Wagner, New York, said:

Strikers Reject Offer To Take Over Plant

MANORVILLE, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—The striking workers of the National Mirror Specialty Company are in a quandary.

A committee of five marched into the offices of Leon H. Samuels, owner, and declared:

"We demand an eight-hour day, a five-day week and a minimum wage of 30 cents an hour."

The workers, fix the hours of work, take your wages out of the profits and pay me a salary as a salesman."

That hit the workers right between the eyes, so to speak, and after a hurried conference the men said they didn't have sufficient managerial experience.

"Then how do you expect a man with experience to do something you can't do?" asked Samuels.

The committee thought some more and then decided:

"We'll be back later."

They hied to Pittsburgh to consult Ernest C. Dunbar, mediator of the regional labor board, and now he's trying to settle the difficulties.

REV. W. R. BRANHAM DIES AT HOSPITAL

Oldest Alumnus of Emory
Passes in 85th Year; Funeral Sunday.

The Rev. Walter Richardson Branham, member of the North Georgia Methodist Episcopal conference for 44 years and one of the best known preachers in the state, died at 9:45 o'clock Friday night at the Wesley Memorial hospital. He had been ill for some time.

Mr. Branham had resided in Oxford, Ga., since 1911 and was superannuated in 1914.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock, eastern time, Sunday afternoon at the old church in Oxford, and burial will be in the Oxford cemetery.

He was the uncle of Judge Virlyn B. Moore, Mrs. Richard Orme Flinn, Mrs. E. C. Carter, Dr. W. B. Emery, Walter R. Branham, T. W. Moore and James Moore, all of whom are well-known residents of Atlanta.

Mr. Branham joined the North Georgia Methodist Episcopal conference in 1870, the year after he was graduated from Emory University in Oxford. He was the oldest living member of the conference.

MAYS BADGETT, 57, ILL 2 WEEKS, DIES

Famed Maker of Violins
Succumbs, Funeral Services at 3 P. M. Sunday.

Mays Badgett, 57, famed throughout the nation as a maker of fine violins and a friend of all musicians, died Friday after an illness of about two weeks.

Services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the chapel of Sam Greenberg & Co., with the Rev. Thomas E. Baber officiating. Burial will be in Hollywood cemetery.

Mr. Badgett was born and reared in Knoxville, Tenn., and while still a child, showed an early talent for instrument making. At his home, 807 Highland view, N. E., there is a guitar, of many intricate pieces, made by him when he was a boy of 12.

He came to Atlanta and went into business 34 years ago and his shop became the mecca for all musicians who visited the city. He numbered among his friends grand opera stars and struggling musicians alike. His picturesque shop was located at Five Points for 30 years, and the big violin which hung outside of the window, telling passers-by that his shop was within, became a landmark. Four years ago he moved into quieter quarters and at the time of his death his shop was at the junction of Pryor and Peachtree streets.

His workmanship was known the world over, and a number of artists of international repute use his instruments. Others traveled hundreds of miles to trust their instruments to his hands alone for repair. He was an honorary member of the American Federation of Musicians and members of the local union have signified their intention of paying a last tribute with music at the services Sunday.

His home as well as his shop was a Continued on Page 8, Column 2.

Patrolman Arrested On Drunk Charges

Patrolman E. M. Cason of the city police department was arrested for being drunk on duty Friday night, according to police reports.

Cason was taken into custody at the Union station while on his beat and charges of being drunk were placed against him by Chief C. P. Connolly and Detective Lieutenant W. H. Andrews. He was taken to the police station by the officers.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, July 20.—National Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes today revealed he had selected T. Thorne Flagler, well-known construction figure of Atlanta, as manager of the huge Techwood low-cost housing project which the federal government has approved for the heart of Atlanta.

While the appointment of Mr. Flagler has not yet been formally announced, Administrator Ickes made known his intention to commission the Atlanta man as project manager in a letter addressed to Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, who previously had urged that the appointment be made.

At the public works administration today it was indicated that Mr. Flagler's selection was the result of both the Techwood and the University housing project, the latter design Continued on Page 4, Column 4.

Rev. W. F. Pate will speak on "The Call of Quiet Voices" at the Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church at Hapeville at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Atlanta Alumni Club of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi will meet this evening at Delta Sigma Pi lodge, near Tucker. The business meeting at 8 o'clock will be preceded by a steak fry.

Dr. J. H. Fuller, pastor of Hills Park Baptist church, will leave Atlanta Monday for Meridian, Miss., where he will conduct special services for the Forty-first Avenue Baptist church. After the meetings there he will go to the Grace Baptist church of Washington, D. C. for a meeting.

Quarterly singing meeting of the Fulton county singing convention will be held at the First Baptist church of Hapeville, at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Members of the congregation of Oakhurst Presbyterian church will meet at the close of the morning service Sunday to elect three additional deacons.

Van Quil Flinn, who claimed permanent disability as a result of tuberculosis under a converted government insurance policy, was awarded $5 a month by a jury in the federal court Friday. Payments will date from October 2, 1932, when the disability was incurred.

Mack Stanley, of Columbus, was sentenced in federal court Friday to 30 months with the payment of a fine of $1 on a charge of raising a government check of $20.32 to $20.32 and trying to cash it at an Atlanta bank. He had previously pleaded guilty.

Nine thousand wages and hours posters, which under NRA requirements, must be posted in every employer's office, were received at NRA offices in the Citizens & Southern Bank building Friday. W. L. Mitchell, state compliance director, warned that employers who fail to post the posters are subject to penalties. They may now obtain these at NRA headquarters.

Dr. R. L. Russell, presiding elder of the Atlanta district, will preach at the Sunday morning service at Grace Methodist church in the absence of the pastor, Dr. W. A. Shelton. Dr. S. T. Senter, pastor of the First Methodist church, will occupy the pulpit for the service at 7:45 o'clock Sunday night.

H. W. Clay, of Atlanta, was ordered held in $1,000 bond by United States Commissioner B. Griffith Friday on a charge of smuggling whiskey and rum into Miami by airplane in June of last year. Clay said the government had confiscated his airplane and was using it in the customs service.

A shot which goes through the arm and pierces the back is precise evidence that the weapon which inflicted the wound is deadly, the court of appeals ruled Friday. The high court upheld a five-to-seven-year sentence given Willie Dixon in the Fulton superior court for assault with intent to murder. Dixon's attorneys appealed on the ground that there was no evidence submitted to show that the court held the evidence concerning the wound was sufficient.

Two men were wounded Friday morning in a pawn shop while examining a pistol which they believed to be unloaded. Later, the manager of a pawnshop, 92 Decatur street, was wounded in the hand when the

Lightning Kills Snake During Erratic Trip

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 20.—(AP)—A snake, which bolted from a hole in the ground at Jenkinsville, Fairfield county:

Struck a chinaberry tree and snapped off the head of a peach tree snake hidden in a hole in the tree. Jumped some eight feet to a parked automobile and made two small holes in the top of the car.

Flowed a furrow about ten feet long in the earth and threw dirt to the top of a house some 30 feet distant.

The unusual story was told here by E. L. Wright, Jenkinsville insurance man, whose car figured in the event.

The churches included in the sponsorship are the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist, Calvary Baptist, Peachtree Road Methodist, Covenant Presbyterian, Peachtree Road Presbyterian and the Cathedral of St. Philip.

Answering a call that a patrolman had been slain by a snake, a squad of heavily armed policemen scoured the neighborhood of 700 Crounch street. They found only a drunk man who was wandering about. His name as Inus Holcomb, 29, of a Beryl street address. Police believe the inebriate was the person who called police giving the false report after calling hospitals and undertakers.

Dr. R. L. Russell will preach at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night at the Haygood Memorial church.

Bishop W. A. Candler will preach at the home-coming at the Kirkwood Methodist church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. All former pastors and the public are invited to attend and a dinner will be served on the grounds.

Revival at the Owl Rock Methodist church, near Ben Hill, will be held Sunday by Rev. A. D. Houghlin, pastor of the Mt. Gilead M. E. church. The revival address will be "Can the Modern Church Have a Revival?" Song services will be conducted every night.

Ordination services to the eldership of Moore Memorial Presbyterian church for A. Straub and L. M. Hunter will be held at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at the church.

Sermons at the Grant Park Baptist church will be "How to Pray and Not Be Heard" at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and at 7:45 o'clock at night, "How to Pray and Be Heard."

Fines of $25 and costs were assessed Friday afternoon by Recorder John L. Cone on Motorcycle Policemen V. E. Geeslin and W. L. Brown, his companion, who lives at 1049 Longley avenue, following hearing of an automobile accident when the car driven by Brown collided Thursday night with one driven by F. E. Herring, of 332 Fifth street, N. E.

CIVILIAN 'STORMS' MILITARY PRISON AND FREES FRIEND

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Soldiers cowering before a group of unidentified civilian "stormers" at the Governor's Island post of the U. S. army and executed a daring delivery of an army prisoner today.

The prisoner was Melvin Blanton, of Camden, Ohio, an inmate of the disciplinary barracks. Blanton, who had twice escaped on previous occasions from Fort Thomas in Kentucky, and once from Fort Benning in Georgia, was working with two other prisoners at the southernmost end of the island.

Sentry Stephen F. Szegedy stood on guard, armed with an automatic shotgun when the civilian approached. He drew a pistol and said to Grezowski: "Drop that gun or you'll get hurt."

The sentry dropped the gun; the man picked it up.

Then, an army truck with two soldiers and a chauffeur arrived. The bold invader forced them to get off the truck and stand with the sentry and the other prisoners.

Next came a passenger automobile bearing two members of the island detachment of the civilian conservation corps. The civilian took command of the development abruptly. The corps members took their place in the line-up.

Warning the group not to pursue, Blanton and his deliverer ran to the eastern end of the island and climbed into a rowboat.

As the amazed soldiers hastened to spread the alarm, the rowboat crossed the channel to the Brooklyn side of the bay.

NEGRO BOYS ARRESTED FOR FALSE FIRE ALARM

Two negro boys were arrested Friday night for turning in a false fire alarm.

They gave their names as Tom Burke, 11, and James Burton, 10, and Patrolmen John Bowman and J. F. Nance, who arrested them, lodged them in the Fulton juvenile home.

The police caught the two near Bailey and West Fair streets where a false alarm had just been pulled.

Officials of the fire department said many false alarms had been turned in recently in several sections of the city.

PIONEER SOCIETIES TO BE ENTERTAINED

Members of the Pioneer Women's Society and the Pioneer School Boys Club will be entertained at a watermelon cutting next Saturday, July 28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Young, 2800 Cascade road, S. W.

The affair will begin at 3:30 o'clock and last until 6 p. m. Arrangements have been made for automobiles to meet street cars at the end of Whitehall-Beecher street line to take those who do not have automobiles.

The occasion is the anniversary of the battle of Ezra church and the capture of Stoneman's Union cavalry.

$1,800 in Cash Prizes!

By THE SAYINGAME EDITOR.
"Pay Dirt" will shortly be struck by the enthusiastic followers of The Constitution's Sayingame. Before many more weeks pass by our treasurer will be filling out the names of winners on checks and dispatching them to their proper destinations. You can well imagine how proud and thrilled the 30 recipients will be! For that matter, we'll get quite a kick out of their good fortune, too, because we like to see people rewarded for earnest effort.

A great many Sayingame followers have decided to make extra bids for prizes by submitting extra sets. On these extra sets they are planning to submit a variety of solutions, which is permitted under the liberal rules.

Questions and Answers

Complete Sets.
Q. I am very much interested in your Sayingame, and would like to know if I can secure a complete set of the pictures now? L. C. E. Murphy, N. C.

A. No. Pictures are not available in advance of publication in The Constitution.

FRENCH CABINET'S LIFE HANGING IN BALANCE

PARIS, July 20.—(UP)—The fate of the French "salvation" government lay in the hands of elderly Premier Gaston Doumergue tonight after an extraordinary session of his cabinet, meeting in his absence, had failed to settle a new crisis arising out of the Stavisky scandals.

Breakup of the ministry, performed following were riots last February, was sought by opposition elements, taking advantage of the controversy which developed when Andre Tardieu, minister without portfolio, openly charged former Premier Camille Chautauque with having hindered investigation into the collapse of the credit municipal bayonne.

The cabinet, unable to reach a decision on the Tardieu-Chautauque quarrel, decided to ask Premier Doumergue to arbitrate. Minister of Justice Henri Cheron, who presided, set out by motor car for Tournefeuille, the premier's rural retreat, to lay the situation before him in detail and ask him personally to settle the dispute.

He probably will reach Doumergue's villa tomorrow afternoon. A meeting of the ministers' council probably will be the next step, but it is unlikely before Tuesday, because Premier Albert Le Brun must preside. He is out of Paris for the week-end on official business.

Moderately Warm, Fair Day Predicted

Saturday will be fair and moderately warm, with a possibility of a shower or rain, the weather bureau forecast Friday.

Temperature extremes near 72 and 90 degrees are expected. Friday showed a reading of 73 to 90 degrees with a stiff breeze blowing most of the day.

THREE BADLY BURNED IN AIRPLANE BLAZE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 20.—(AP)—Four persons were burned, three seriously, when a privately-owned New Orleans plane caught fire while landing at the Springfield airport.

The names of the persons in the plane were given as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maynard and Arthur Johnson, all of New Orleans, and Robert A. Johnston, of Chicago.

The plane was destroyed after the pilot and passengers escaped.

EIGHTH SUICIDE EFFORT PREVENTED BY POLICE

Prisoner at Tower Slashed
Artery With Safety
Razor Blade.

The eighth suicide attempt in Atlanta during the past four days was frustrated by county police who rushed the victim to Grady hospital after he had slashed an artery in his arm with a safety razor blade in his cell at Fulton tower early Friday morning.

The victim, Frank Stokes, 36, held by county authorities on a vagrancy charge, cut a deep wound in his left arm and was taken to the hospital by deputy sheriffs where his condition was said to be good Friday night.

Six of the other prisoners who attempted to take their own lives are also recovering from poisons and bullet wounds while Miss Pauline Trolinger, 19, of Cascade road, was successful in her pact with Miss Nora Baker, 18, both firing shots into their breasts.

T. J. Whitehead, 17-year-old inmate at the Fulton tower who drank a quantity of iodine in his cell Thursday morning, was reported in good health after treatment at Grady hospital and was returned to jail. He said that he dreaded the thought of spending one year in his cell, to which he was sentenced for burglary.

The conditions of Margaret Brooks and Ruth Spann, both prisoners at the city farm, to New Frank, poison Thursday, were reported as improved. Miss Baker, whose condition since she shot herself was considered as critical, was declared by police and authorities Friday as much better.

Two school girls who entered a suicide pact because they were tired of being teased and drank poison Wednesday in front of Grady hospital, were saved from death by quick action of the staff. They are Eva Wilson, 16, and Estelle Wilson, both of 15 Krug street.

ALLEN THREATENS TO REMOVE MAYOR OF NEW ORLEANS

proceedings, but left his office late in the day to drive to New Orleans.

Warning.
After denouncing alleged vice and crime in New Orleans and charging that the mayor, chief of police and district attorney "support or permit this vice and debauchery," the letter said:

"Now, sir, this state proposes to proceed against these filthy official practices and against the vice and crime itself. We propose to undertake the removal and prosecution of the officials responsible for the same. Either you proceed to do your whole duty as officers of the city and of this state at once, or stand ready for the consequences."

Senator Long, in New Orleans, declined to be interviewed after the letter was made public. Mayor Walmesley was out of the state, and traveling through the west by automobile.

Acting Mayor A. Miles Pratt, however, laughed grimly and said: "Is that so? Well, isn't that interesting? Suppose he is going to do all this stepping on three ants."

"I shall ignore any outer order from Governor Allen and refuse to surrender the office," said Superintendent Reger.

"I'd like to see the law he intends to use in removing me from office," said District Attorney Stanley. "I'd like to know what right he has to remove me from office. If he thinks he can remove me, let him go to it."

Allen's move against the Orleans officials was another chapter in the bitter political enmity existing between the state and city authorities since Mayor Walmesley's early refusal to defeat the Long forces in last January's municipal primary.

SAILOR KILLS SELF AT CAROLINA HOME

ABBEVILLE, S. C., July 20.—(AP) Dale Welsh, 21, of New York, third mate with the Sincle Merchant Marine fleet, shot and killed himself at his father's home here early today.

The coroner said it was a clear case of suicide.

Tongueless Leopard Dies of Starvation

MADISON, Wis., July 20.—(AP)—

Death from starvation has come to Tony, 15-year-old leopard at Vilas zoo, three weeks after he bit off his tongue.

His affection for Duchess, a sleek lioness occupying an adjacent cage, proved his undoing. Although repulsed by Duchess on many previous occasions, Tony tried again three weeks ago to win her favor. He thrust his tongue between the bars and fondly licked Duchess' back.

The lioness turned savagely and seized his tongue between her teeth. Tony's jaws snapped together, severing his tongue.

Despite the efforts of Fred Wundkhamm, zoo director, Tony gradually weakened and finally succumbed to starvation.

F.D.R. Studies Reports As Voyage Proceeds

ABOARD CRUISER NEW ORLEANS ACCOMPANYING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 20.—(AP) President Roosevelt studied reports dealing with his social program today as he cruised toward Hawaii on the Houston under a clear sky and smooth water.

He surveyed results of his 13,000-mile inspection trip, which has taken him already through the Panama canal, after visits to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

A flood of invitations has been coming in from the Hawaiian Islands, and the president is eagerly looking forward to his five-day visit, which will be concluded at Honolulu from next Thursday to Saturday.

Watching Pacific coast strike developments, Mr. Roosevelt seemed pleased with progress made in negotiations and hopeful of early settlement through his negotiators.

PRISONERS STAGE RIOT IN BIRMINGHAM JAIL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 20.—(AP)—Rioting prisoners in the county jail here today flooded the main cell block, smashed windows and tore out plumbing and light fixtures in an unsuccessful effort at a wholesale jail delivery.

Armed with improvised weapons made from sash weights and pieces of plumbing pipes, the prisoners defied guards for a short time, but Warden E. B. Erwin announced at 10:15 a. m. that "the prisoners were under control."

Five defendants in the "Scottsboro" case, in solitary confinement in another section of the jail, were not involved in the rioting.

Damage to the fixtures of the jail, situated on the eighth floor of the new Jefferson county courthouse, will be several hundred dollars.

Sailor Drowned.

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—The body of Louis M. Almy, second-class torpedo man on the U. S. S. destroyer Babbitt, was found today floating in the North river. He was pronounced dead from drowning.

REGISTRATION TOTALS

15,604 FRIDAY NIGHT

Mere 360 Added to Slowly Mounting List During the Day.

Despite the fact that registration for the September 28 primary Friday was 15,604, according to J. Hanson Tatum, registrar, it was the lowest figure ever recorded in any mayoralty primary since suffrage was granted women.

A total of 360 persons were registered Friday at various booths scattered at strategic points throughout the city. Registration through Thursday was 15,244.

Members of the Atlanta League of Women Voters and the Georgia Women's Democratic Club continued the drive for a minimum registration list of 30,000 persons.

Only one week is left, however, to register and be ready to vote in the primary.

A mayor, three aldermen, two council members and four members of the board of education will be asked to pass on proposals for repeal of the state home dry laws, institution of daylight saving time for Atlanta during the summer months and whether they prefer that the school system be divorced entirely from council or made a department of the city as all other departments.

The following special registration booths will be established today: Tenth ward: Stewart Avenue Pharmacy, Stewart Avenue and Pearce street; Oakland city Pharmacy, 1173 Lee street. Both booths will open at 8 a. m. and remain open until 7 p. m.

30 MORE DROWNED IN FLOOD IN POLAND

WARSAW, July 20.—(AP)—Thirty or 40 more persons were believed to have been drowned in flood waters when a bridge over which many persons were passing collapsed at Sandomir.

Eleven members of a military engineering squad were reported to be among the victims.

HIGH SCHOOL FRATS HIT AT ATHENS MEET

Federal Funds for State
Schools To Continue,
Collins States.

ATHENS, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Opposition to high school fraternities and sororities was expressed by the Georgia Parent-Teacher Association today on the grounds that they foster class distinction.

The organization took the stand at the closing session of the annual institute at the University of Georgia. Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, institute leader, declared children of poor parents are automatically barred from the social clubs and therefore "the whole system is out of place in a system of education built on the foundation of democracy."

Budgets also came in for discussion at the meeting today as to reasons for existence and methods of administration and duties of committees and officers were gone over. The registration committee reported an attendance of approximately 200.

In her speech, Mrs. Watkins warned that "Parent-Teacher associations cannot limit their duties to the school itself."

"They are organized for the purpose of improving the conditions surrounding the child so that anything in the community affecting the child comes within the scope of the association."

"Rums must be cleared, desirable movies provided and better recreation and more music furnished," she added.

Another duty of the Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. Watkins said, is to bring to the attention of the public facts concerning school conditions since they are dependent upon public support.

Promises that there will be federal aid for Georgia's school teachers were made by State Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins at a meeting of the state Parent-Teacher Congress here.

Collins, speaking last night, told the congress he had been advised in a telegram from Washington that approximately $69,000 a month would be forthcoming for jobs for unemployed teachers during the next school year.

Mrs. Charles D. Center, president of the congress, presided over today's session.

Miss Lella Bunce led a discussion on the library and the Parent-Teacher Association, playgrounds, music and juvenile protection.

Following this meeting, there was a round-table on how the Parent-Teacher Association should work through the home, how it should work through the school and how it should work through the community. After a round of questions on these topics, the conference was adjourned for the noon recess.

Mrs. Watkins again led the discussions in the afternoon session, which was climaxed by the awarding of certificates by Dr. N. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia and director of the summer quarter.

Superintendent Collins told the institute that even though Georgia will have federal aid for education again next year, educational forces in the state would expect the general assembly to do more for education than it ever has in the past.

LINDSEY IS BETTER, LATE REPORT SAYS

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Dr. R. C. Swift, superintendent of the state hospital, said in a message to the state board of control that E. E. Lindsey, chairman of the board, was resting easier this morning but was still in a serious condition from typhoid fever.

Mr. Lindsey was on his way to Brunswick and stopped over to inspect the Milledgeville hospital. He became ill and physicians put him to bed.

Old Street Cars Serve New Purpose at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Captain William H. Robertson, superintendent of the Savannah airport, has found a new use for old street cars.

Two old street cars obtained from the Savannah Electric & Power Company are to be placed in use at Hunter field here. One will be used as a waiting room during the hours the Eastern Air Line depot is not open. The other is being made into a lunch room and refreshment stand.

Howell's Condition Continues Serious

ATHENS, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Hugh Howell Jr., son of the chairman of the state democratic executive committee, who was injured in an automobile accident near here, was reported as still in a serious condition late today. He suffered concussion of the brain.

His condition was described as serious but not critical at the hospital where he was taken following a crash between two cars on the Greensboro road late yesterday.

A. H. Bunch, of Tucker, Ga., who was riding with Howell, lost several teeth in the accident. He was released from the hospital today. The car in which they were riding collided with one carrying three Greensboro men.

One of the men in the other car was seriously hurt. They were said to be textile workers and were returning home at the time of the accident. Young Howell and Bunch were en route to Athens from a barbecue and road rally at Watson Springs.

Hugh Howell arrived here last night from Reidsville, where he had been engaged in closing the new state prison which is being built.

MOULTRIE OBSERVER ISSUES BIG EDITION

MOULTRIE, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Dressed in new type, a 22-page "Faith" edition of the Moultrie Observer was in circulation today carrying many stories of the growth and development of Moultrie and Colquitt counties.

Colquitt county's crop diversification program was credited with helping the section to weather the depression, in a review of the past few years by W. C. Vereen, president of the Moultrie Banking Company.

He said there was an encouraging outlook ahead for farmers, and this encourage those in every other line of business.

Linder promised if elected to organize the farmers of the south in a protest to Washington.

DRASTIC CHANGE ASKED IN NAVAL STORES CODE

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Naval stores operators from five southern states today asked the federal government to make drastic changes in the marketing agreement for the industry.

The operators from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi said they were dissatisfied over what were claimed injustices and discriminations in the marketing agreement and adopted resolutions asking Secretary Wallace and the naval stores control committee to institute changes.

Judge M. D. Dickerson, of Douglas, was named permanent chairman of the meeting and John Bray Giddens, of Valdosta, secretary.

SAVANNAH FROWNS ON COMMUNISTIC PAPERS

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 20.—(P)—"Savannah will not tolerate the sowing of communistic seeds," declared Mayor Thomas Gamble in a communication to the American Legion here.

The Legion, as a patriotic organization, offered its services to the mayor following the finding of communistic papers by police who raided a negro gambling house. It was the first indication that communistic agitators were active in Savannah.

Mayor Gamble thanked the Legion for its offer and accepted their services if and when needed.

PITTMAN IS TO SPEAK IN WARRENTON TODAY

WARRENTON, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Judge Claude Pittman will make his fourteenth address in his campaign for governor at Warrenton tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Following the speech here, Judge Pittman will return to his Cartersville home and will preside over court in Whitfield county starting Monday.

SPREAD OF WEALTH, NRA AIM, SAYS GEORGE

Senator Tells Valdosta Audience Unusual Period
Exists in Nation.

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 20.—(P)—The philosophy of the NRA and all other departments of the government is for a "more equitable distribution of wealth," Senator Walter F. George told the Valdosta Rotary Club.

"Civilization cannot go on if the great majority producing the wealth of the country are not allowed to participate," he said.

He told the club the country is passing through the "most unusual period" of its history and that there have been many radical changes taking place, but that everything "will work out and will not be so radical after all."

So many unusual things have taken place in Washington under the present administration, he said, that it will probably take the second generation to find out what has been done.

He concluded his talk with the statement that he had never known a "more genuine public servant than Franklin D. Roosevelt."

GLENNVILLE OFFICER IS HELD IN SLAYING

GLENNVILLE, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Carl Delk, night policeman, was in the Tattall county jail at Reidsville today under a charge of murder in the shooting of Loye Busbee, 22, in this town Wednesday night.

Officers said Busbee told them he was shot by Delk but could give no reason for the shooting.

Busbee is survived by his parents, two brothers and three sisters. Funeral services were held here this afternoon.

OIL MONOPOLY EXISTS, TOM LINDER CHARGES

BLUFFTON, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Tom Linder, candidate for commissioner of the Moultrie Banking Company, has described as a vegetable oil monopoly that was damaging the farmers of the south.

He said many Georgia farmers had quit raising peanuts and hogs since the vegetable oils were admitted duty free from the Philippines and the peanut oil and hog lard dealers could not compete with the foreign oils.

Linder promised if elected to organize the farmers of the south in a protest to Washington.

Revival at Filphen.

McDONOUGH, Ga., July 20.—Revival services are being held this week at the Filphen Methodist church. Rev. G. P. Cantrell pastor, is conducting the meeting.

Clubs Club Meets.

ACOWORTH, Ga., July 20.—The Acworth Club held its regular monthly meeting Friday night at the clubhouse.

The general theme of the meeting was the varied and the various committees made their reports. Sam Welch was the principal speaker. His address was based on the laws of the legislature.

The women of the Presbyterian congregation provided a dinner.

Lightning Kills Cow.

POWDER SPRINGS, Ga., July 20.—A cow belonging to Doyle Garrett, a farmer near this place, was killed by a bolt of lightning as she was grazing in a pasture Wednesday.

Heat Kills Negro.

MACON, Ga., July 20.—(P)—The death of a young negro was attributed to the heat today. His body was found in a pool near his home near Franklin and the coroner's jury found he died of a cerebral hemorrhage caused by the blood rushing to the head as he drank cool water from the pool.

Fish Hatchery Work.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., July 20.—Completion of the state fish hatchery at this place at a cost of approximately $5,000, is assured, the project having been approved by the government this week, and work will probably be started next Monday.

About 20 emergency relief administration employees of Chatooga county will be given employment for a period of approximately 90 days, it is said.

May Abandon Road.

COLUMBIAS, Ga., July 20.—Abandonment of the proposed new route to Fort Benning by Columbus appears likely as the Muscogee county commission reported today that the cost of securing rights of way was too high.

While many of the property owners on the route were willing to grant land in return for payment of any damage incurred, others were demanding as high as $200 to $300 an acre. Previously the route had been approved by the state highway commission.

LAFAYETTE MAN DIES IN FALL FROM AUTO

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 20.—(P)—Benjamin White, of Lafayette, Ga., received fatal injuries when he fell from the running board of an automobile near here today. Policeman Spariel Griffin, who was behind the automobile, said the car stopped suddenly, throwing White to the pavement.

The injured man was dead when he was brought to a local hospital. Officer Griffin said the car on which he was riding was not going more than 20 miles an hour.

White is survived by his wife, three sons and three daughters. Funeral services were held today.

'CHISELING' CHARGED IN MACON MILK PACT

MACON, Ga., July 20.—(P)—A milk agreement in effect between Bibb county dairymen and an agreement with the Macon Telegraph said today, as the result of "chiseling."

The Bibb Co-Operative Dairy Association was reported as having released a large dairy from an agreement to keep the price of milk at 12 cents per quart because a number of others were selling milk at 10 cents.

A meeting of the dairy association was held today. The dairy association has been called by the co-operative association for Monday in an effort to arrive at a uniform price.

Georgia News Told in Brief

Bank Pays Dividend.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 20.—Announcement is made by W. C. Patterson, liquidating agent, that the Bank of Thomasville would pay an eight per cent dividend to depositors next Monday, July 23. The amount of the dividend is $80,459.73.

Payment of this dividend is made possible by the recent sale of the Bank of Thomasville building to the Commercial Bank, involving $40,000.

The Bank of Thomasville closed on January 28, 1932.

Summerville Plans Paving.

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., July 20.—Practically all the business streets of Summerville will be paved in the near future, according to a resolution passed by city council at its last meeting.

The city will pay one-third of the cost of the work and the other two-thirds will be borne by the abutting property owners. The work of grading and draining the streets to be paved will be started within a few days.

Thomasville Postal Gains.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 20.—(P)—An increase of approximately 7 per cent in postal receipts for the first six months of 1934 over the corresponding period of last year has been reported by Postmaster B. C. Blanton.

Griffin Boy Named.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(P)—Paul Darnell Ellis Jr., 312 North Hill street, Griffin, Ga., and David McCampbell, 333 Datura street, West Palm Beach, Fla., were commissioned as ensigns by the navy department under a special act of congress which permitted the navy to commission graduates of the naval academy.

Eighty-eight graduates of the naval academy that year were commissioned yesterday.

Rome to Pave Street.

ROME, Ga., July 20.—Work of laying water main in Maple street, one of the city's principal thoroughfares, has been completed and paving will start at an early date, according to Mr. L. M. Linder, city engineer.

Legal work, preparatory to the paving is being done now by the city attorney.

Clemmons Opens Race.

ROME, Ga., July 20.—Much interest is being shown in local politics this section. Tom Clemmons, tax collector of Floyd county, started his campaign for the seat in congress in opposition to Malcolm Tarver, of Dalton. Mr. Clemmons has opened his campaign by visiting the various counties in the state.

Candidates for various other offices are also waging the opening part of their campaigns.

GEORGIA FAVORS 'PEEPAL'—GILLIAM

Candidate for Governor
at Moultrie Says Prohibition Law Openly Violated.

MOULTRIE, Ga., July 20.—"If every man and woman in Georgia who has taken a drink of liquor, or home brew, or beer, since the Georgia 'bone dry' law was enacted, will vote for me, I will win the nomination in the primary on September 12 without a runner," declared Ed A. Gilliam, candidate for governor, in an address here this afternoon in the Colquitt county courthouse.

"From the day of its enactment down to this day, the Georgia prohibition law has been openly violated," Mr. Gilliam asserted, adding that "the longer it remains on the statute books, the more it is a disgrace to the state."

Continuing on the subject of repealing the Georgia prohibition law, which forces the No. 1 plan in his platform, Mr. Gilliam said:

"If the bone dry law was being enforced, I would be the last man to drink. But it is not being enforced, has never been enforced, and will never be enforced. Beer is being sold openly in every town and city in the state. These liquor stores are being run without a license in every county in Georgia."

"Prohibition in Georgia has not promoted temperance, has not promoted sobriety, has not reduced crime, has not elevated the standards of government, has not made the state a better place, it has created the exact reverse of those conditions."

Effect on Youth.

"But the worst thing it has done, and the most appalling, is that boys and girls of our citizenship except those engaged in the blockade and bootleg traffic. Every county in the world that has tried prohibition has found it to be a failure and has abandoned it. The United States tried it on a national scale and gave it a thorough test and expended millions upon millions in a futile effort to enforce it. Now the nation, as a nation, has abandoned and repudiated it, and the time has come for Georgia to act with common sense and honesty and repeal our state law."

"For a quarter of a century, prohibition has been an issue to frighten candidates for office and frighten law-abiding citizens like a bugaboo. But I have found in my campaign with the people in this campaign that the people are not afraid of it. They are glad to have it brought in the open and frankly discussed, as I am discussing it."

"I venture the assertion that if a clean-cut expression of the sentiment of the people could be had on the issue, Georgia would vote overwhelmingly in favor of repealing our farcical and hypocritical and crime-breeding 'bone dry' law."

Mr. Gilliam argued that prohibition should be repealed in Georgia both as a means of eradicating the bootleg traffic and of raising a revenue "legally" both by the state and the local governments.

He estimated that the state's revenue from alcoholic beverages taxes would run at least to $5,000,000 a year, with county and municipal revenue in like proportion.

This revenue, he asserted, coupled with the revenue from the sale of beer and wine, would be raised by a retail sales tax, "would enable the state to take over the support of the common schools, the adequate provision for all other departments and institutions, and at the same time withdraw from the field of ad valorem taxation and leave that exclusively for the counties and municipalities."

Taking over the common schools, he declared, would relieve the county and municipal governments of at least 30 per cent of their present operating expenses, so that they could cut down their local tax rate accordingly, and he estimated that the revenues accruing to local governments from alcoholic beverage taxes would enable them to write off an additional 15 to 20 per cent of their tax rates.

Speaks at Valdosta.

Mr. Gilliam went to Valdosta last night where he addressed Lowndes county voters. In his Valdosta speech he said a "general closing" of school schools of Georgia, or a "general closing" of the state, would have occurred in the early spring of this year, except for federal aid.

He said the situation of the schools next fall and spring would be "worse than it was last spring."

"The chaotic situation into which Governor Talmer has plunged the vital matter of railroad taxes will prevent the state from collecting any taxes from the railroads until their cessants has been finally decided by the United States supreme court."

"With railroad taxes held up, it is going to be difficult, if not impossible, for the schools to be kept open."

Following his Moultrie address, Mr. Gilliam left for Tifton for a speech Saturday morning, and said he would wind up a week's campaigning with a speech at Cordele Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

FITZPATRICK CLERK
HELD ON POSTAL COURT

MACON, Ga., July 20.—T. E. Jones, formerly a clerk in the store and postoffice at Fitzpatrick, Ga., was arrested in Macon and held in $1,000 bond on charges of stealing 63 money order blanks and $40 in cash from the Fitzpatrick postoffice, J. W. Cole, postal inspector of the Atlanta division, announced on Friday.

Cole said that Jones was a nephew of Miss Fleta Fitzpatrick, postmistress at Fitzpatrick. Jones, with another man, attempted to cash a $100 bogus money order in Macon, Cole said, but the other man proved his innocence of complicity.

15-YEAR-OLD GIRL KILLED BY LIGHTNING

ROCKY FORD, Ga., July 20.—(P)—Funeral services for Dolores Parker, 15, who was killed by lightning late yesterday afternoon, were held this morning. Miss Parker was in the yard of her home when a bolt of lightning suddenly struck her down. Efforts to revive her continued in vain for several hours.

Miss Parker was a popular student of the Rocky Ford high school. Her classmates served as pallbearers.

REV. THOMAS N. GIVEN IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—(P)—The Rev. Thomas N. Given, 80, who for 35 years served charges in Delaware and the eastern shore of Virginia and Maryland, died yesterday in a Philadelphia hospital.

"Numbers Racketeer" Found at Courthouse

Vigilantes of the office of the solicitor-general who have been scouring the town for lottery racketeers, found a "numbers racketeer" at home Friday and picked up Freeman Bush, negro courthouse janitor, who was placed in Fulton tower under $1,000 bond.

Bush, who has been employed by the county for several years, was arrested by George Pounds, investigator for the solicitor-general, after he had received a tip that the janitor was selling tickets to courthouse visitors. Pounds got an outsider to go and purchase a "number" and the arrest followed.

TURNER, SPEED PILOT, ARRIVES HERE TODAY

Colonel Roscoe Turner, noted speed pilot and holder of many flying records, will arrive at Candler field at 9 o'clock this morning. One of his chief aims is increasing the interest of children in aviation.

He is coming here through the courtesy of the H. J. Heinz Company. He will go from the field directly to Loew's Grand theater where at 9:30 o'clock he will speak to the junior birdmen of the city. He will have a luncheon with Heinz salesmen in this territory at 12:30 o'clock, and will broadcast over WGST at 6:30 o'clock.

Colonel Turner will speak to the boys and girls of Atlanta at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Candler field. He has arranged several flights for junior birdmen. Heinz salesmen and display winners.

He is one of the few speed pilots who has never "cracked up." He is an exponent of speed with safety. He is said to be the oldest pilot actively flying in the world.

He never takes his plane up without first checking and rechecking its equipment.

"Air speed pilots are performing a service in that they are

BANKHEAD LAW TEST.

The long-anticipated constitutionality test of the Bankhead cotton law, which limits the 1934 crop to approximately 10,000,000 bales, will occur in a federal district court at Meridian, Miss., if a 300-bale cotton farmer of that state goes through with his announced plan.

The suit will be directed against Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and names several articles of the federal constitution, which it is alleged are violated by carrying out provisions of the Bankhead law.

If the complainant does go through with his announced intention the case will have to take its turn on the federal court calendar, which in all probability will act to delay a hearing until a large part of the 1934 crop will have been picked, ginned and sold.

In the meantime time is doing more than man-made laws to bring about a shortage in the 1934 crop. Just as the great drought reduced the small grain crops of the middle west more than the acreage-curtailment program of the government, so adverse weather conditions throughout the cotton belt are acting to reduce the cotton crop.

"Spotty weather" has been the rule so far this year throughout the entire cotton-raising district. Some parts had a long early drought that retarded germination of seed; others early rains that delayed planting.

Other sections got away to a good start only to encounter a long period of cool, wet weather that developed heavy weevil infestation. Just now the extreme western part of the belt is suffering from drought. August is usually the critical month for cotton—favorable weather has been known to act as a tonic that has developed a fine yield for fields given up as "gone" in July, while unfavorable weather has literally ruined the yield of fields that looked good in July.

Conservative opinion, based on a general survey of the entire belt, is that the 1934 crop will fall far short of the 10,000,000-bale limit, estimates varying from 9,000,000 to 9,500,000 bales. This opinion appears to prevail in cotton-trading circles, the price having advanced well into the 13-cent range, and fluctuating up and down as Wall Street traders take their profits on the rises, and buying back into the game, when the price drops a few points. The gain, however, is constantly upward, with the prospects of 14-cent cotton by August, unless there is a decided change in weather conditions.

THE COST OF STRIKES.
Federal labor department records disclose that between the first of January and June 1, this year, there were 10,000,000 man-days in which workmen went without pay because of labor disputes. The records for June and part of July have not been compiled, but as there has been an increase in the number of strikes during the past month and a half, with more idleness involved, conservative estimates are that the workers have already lost 15,000,000 work days this year.

Department officials estimate that these 15,000,000 idle days represent a loss of over $50,000,000 in cash wages to the workers. But the workers involved are not the only ones who suffer loss through strikes.

That $50,000,000 paid to them in wages would have gone back into the channels of trade in payment for rent, insurance, food, clothing, automobiles, and other necessary articles. This would have stimulated all lines of industry, creating thousands of new jobs for unemployed men and women, who in turn, would have poured their wages back into the commercial stream.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

What Next?
Having decapitated his own movement, killed his own closest collaborators, chased the storm troops home and virtually ended nazism, Hitler is now at the mercy of the reichswehr. It was the reichswehr commander, General von Fritsch, who ordered him to cease the wholesale executions without trial. Hitler sent Goering to parley with the general. But von Fritsch refused to receive this emissary. The reichswehr is supreme in the reich. But Goering and Hitler still have a force of their own, the so-called "Schutz-Staffeln," black police, the German people call this body.

This is his bodyguard. It now stands between him and the reichswehr. If he carries out orders coming from the reichswehr without protest, he may stay for a while, if he doesn't let his Schutz-Staffeln simply be pushed aside. The reichswehr generals don't want to start trouble, because they are afraid they will be just their flunkies now and all the world knows it. But when I told this to a general, O. H. H. of the German Herren in the U. S. A. protested, what a scoundrel I was, how I lacked in respect for the Fuehrer!

The Next Phase in Germany.
There is bound to come a terrible reaction in Germany. The bloody business of the first week of July will not remain without bloodshed. If Herr Hitler is a courageous person, which he isn't, if he really believes in his keeping faith, he would take that revolver which is still smoking from the assassination of his own friends, and make an end of it. In 1923 he threatened to commit suicide if he was not made a general. Now he is threatening to commit suicide if he is not made a general. He is threatening to commit suicide if he is not made a general. He is threatening to commit suicide if he is not made a general.

Who Are the Next Chiefs?
The reichswehr is supreme. That's the real power in Germany. It is only tolerated. The generals are going to rule the roost after this. Behind the generals stand von Papen, Hugenberg, Thyssen, Hindenburg. They are not sentimental fools. They may allow Herr Hitler to continue his anti-Jewish campaign for awhile, but that foolish and cruel business will stop as soon as they see it is not to their advantage. General von Fritsch, the real master, because commander of the reichswehr, said recently: "All that race business is the most foolish stuff ever dished up. It is a socialism for damned fools. With these words he repeated what another statesman, but not a general, said once. If the military men can stay in the saddle, which is not certain, they have more chance of succeeding than Hitler. They may get a foreign loan and permission to proceed with rearmament, with a view to attack Russia, and then the game is up. For the moment everybody is suspicious of Germany in Europe, not to say horrified.

News Behind the News

(Paul Mallon is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

SOON OVER WASHINGTON, July 20.—When, in the first week of last March, it was announced that Richard Washburn Child had been named special adviser to the secretary of state, there was considerable mystification over the appointment and speculation as to why it had been made.

As far as any one knew, Mr. Child had no special claims upon the administration and, in some respects, quite the contrary was true. He had been in the diplomatic service before, as ambassador to Italy, but, previous to being named for this new post, he had been writing articles for publication which were decidedly critical of the administration. In fact, some practical persons found in this the cause of his being given a job, and the only sufficient cause.

As special adviser to the secretary of state, it was stated that Mr. Child would attend the session of the London economic conference, that he would travel in Europe to study and report on the present and prospective state of the economic situation there, with special reference to the resolutions of the economic conference which had been passed or were pending. He was to have the rank of ambassador and draw the ambassadorial salary of $17,500.

MORE MYSTERY Mr. Child's appointment was announced on March 5 and now, just about four months later, he is back in this country. And the mystery of his original appointment is only deepened because he is again writing articles for publication which point out faults and fallacies in the program of the administration in which he has just served. At the state department, it is said that Mr. Child is no longer connected with the diplomatic service. It would be somewhat incongruous if he were because one of his latest articles is devoted to telling the political opponents of the administration how to embarrass it and hamper its proposals. As to Mr. Child's brief career under the New Deal, it is being asked: "If it was to be so soon done for, what ever was it begun for?"

DON'T CLICK A certain incongruity exists in the roles being played at the moment by General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator. In San Francisco, he is appearing, either by invitation or by intrusion, as mediator in the strike. As such, he is expected to maintain an impartial attitude between employers and employees, between companies and unions.

While this is his status in San Francisco, in Washington he is being publicly denounced as a foe of unions and labor. As a result of the Donovan incident, the department of commerce building, housing the NRA, is being picked over by the press and the public, and the wine concession, as they call it, is being sold. "Chisel No. 1, Johnson," "Johnson a Sell-out."

VOICES STILLED Absence of the president from Washington and the usual summer doldrums have put the capital into a state of torpor. Before this lull set in an activity with which politically-minded society people were busily occupied was trying to get another well-known woman into the diplomatic service. The ice having been broken with the naming of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen as minister to Denmark, it was thought by promoters of women's rights and privileges that the example should be followed up.

Specifically, the friends of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman believed that she was just the person to fill the vacant post of minister to the Irish Free State. A campaign of "mentioning" her for the place, or saying that she was being considered for it, was carried on for some time, but without any appreciable results.

THE COST OF STRIKES.
Federal labor department records disclose that between the first of January and June 1, this year, there were 10,000,000 man-days in which workmen went without pay because of labor disputes. The records for June and part of July have not been compiled, but as there has been an increase in the number of strikes during the past month and a half, with more idleness involved, conservative estimates are that the workers have already lost 15,000,000 work days this year.

Department officials estimate that these 15,000,000 idle days represent a loss of over $50,000,000 in cash wages to the workers. But the workers involved are not the only ones who suffer loss through strikes.

That $50,000,000 paid to them in wages would have gone back into the channels of trade in payment for rent, insurance, food, clothing, automobiles, and other necessary articles. This would have stimulated all lines of industry, creating thousands of new jobs for unemployed men and women, who in turn, would have poured their wages back into the commercial stream.

Department officials say the cost of the strikes to the nation as a whole, directly and indirectly,

News Behind the News

(Paul Mallon is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

SOON OVER WASHINGTON, July 20.—When, in the first week of last March, it was announced that Richard Washburn Child had been named special adviser to the secretary of state, there was considerable mystification over the appointment and speculation as to why it had been made.

As far as any one knew, Mr. Child had no special claims upon the administration and, in some respects, quite the contrary was true. He had been in the diplomatic service before, as ambassador to Italy, but, previous to being named for this new post, he had been writing articles for publication which were decidedly critical of the administration. In fact, some practical persons found in this the cause of his being given a job, and the only sufficient cause.

As special adviser to the secretary of state, it was stated that Mr. Child would attend the session of the London economic conference, that he would travel in Europe to study and report on the present and prospective state of the economic situation there, with special reference to the resolutions of the economic conference which had been passed or were pending. He was to have the rank of ambassador and draw the ambassadorial salary of $17,500.

MORE MYSTERY Mr. Child's appointment was announced on March 5 and now, just about four months later, he is back in this country. And the mystery of his original appointment is only deepened because he is again writing articles for publication which point out faults and fallacies in the program of the administration in which he has just served. At the state department, it is said that Mr. Child is no longer connected with the diplomatic service. It would be somewhat incongruous if he were because one of his latest articles is devoted to telling the political opponents of the administration how to embarrass it and hamper its proposals. As to Mr. Child's brief career under the New Deal, it is being asked: "If it was to be so soon done for, what ever was it begun for?"

DON'T CLICK A certain incongruity exists in the roles being played at the moment by General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator. In San Francisco, he is appearing, either by invitation or by intrusion, as mediator in the strike. As such, he is expected to maintain an impartial attitude between employers and employees, between companies and unions.

While this is his status in San Francisco, in Washington he is being publicly denounced as a foe of unions and labor. As a result of the Donovan incident, the department of commerce building, housing the NRA, is being picked over by the press and the public, and the wine concession, as they call it, is being sold. "Chisel No. 1, Johnson," "Johnson a Sell-out."

VOICES STILLED Absence of the president from Washington and the usual summer doldrums have put the capital into a state of torpor. Before this lull set in an activity with which politically-minded society people were busily occupied was trying to get another well-known woman into the diplomatic service. The ice having been broken with the naming of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen as minister to Denmark, it was thought by promoters of women's rights and privileges that the example should be followed up.

Specifically, the friends of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman believed that she was just the person to fill the vacant post of minister to the Irish Free State. A campaign of "mentioning" her for the place, or saying that she was being considered for it, was carried on for some time, but without any appreciable results.

RUSTIC REPARTEE A young lady who attended the famous Tugwell hearing some weeks ago was considerably impressed with the fact that certain senators considered Dr. Tugwell unfit for public office because he did not have enough mud on his boots.

Well, that ought to give a fair idea of what is normal, you may think. But I can't agree with you. It may give a fair idea of what is normal, but it may give a fair idea of what is abnormal. ## THREE ARE INDICTED FOR RECENT HOLDUPS

Grand Jury Returns True Bills Friday Against Six Accused.

H. D. Patrick was named in an indictment returned Friday by the Fulton county grand jury, charging robbery of $105.75 from the Atlanta Building Loan Company in a recent holdup. M. D. Thompson, indicted last week on the same charge, was named in the indictment against Patrick.

Another holdup figured in the bill naming Ernest Brannon, charged with a $23 robbery from Carroll Baking Company, operators of the Dutch Oven, on July 16.

A joint indictment was returned charging J. H. Cottogim and Brooks Patterson, a lawyer, with false swearing and false representations in connection with a $1,200 loan obtained from Mrs. Pearl C. Sloan. Information given the grand jury is understood to have shown that Cottogim represented that there were no liens against the property when applying for the loan and that the property was mortgaged at the time and was afterward sold.

Dr. Tom Y. Young, a Chinese, was named in an indictment charging that he is practicing medicine without a license from the state medical examiners.

Harboring an escaped convict was charged in a bill naming James Francis Thompson, who is accused of aiding his brother, M. D. Thompson, after he had escaped from the penitentiary, where he was serving a burglary sentence. The Atlanta Building Loan Company robbery occurred after Thompson's escape. He has since been captured.

The grand jury returned an indictment naming George Poulos and John Smith, charged with operating a gaming house at 12 1-2 Broad street, N. W. It is understood the complaining witness told the grand jury he lost about $30 at "down the river," a fast-moving game of seven-card stud poker.

SOAP BOX ENTRANTS INVITED TO LAKEWOOD

All entrants to the All-American Soap Box Derby, which will be held under the auspices of The Constitution on North Shore drive on August 4, will be admitted free to the automobile races at Lakewood Sunday. All they have to do is to present their rule books at the gate.

Entrants were reminded again Friday that they must return their entry cards to Chevrolet dealers before they can enter the race.

The winner of the Atlanta Derby will enter the All-American Derby in Dayton on August 19 and compete with boys from 35 other states. The Derby is creating a tremendous interest among boys of Atlanta. These may obtain complete information about it from any Chevrolet dealer.

Parole Revocation Asked for Knowles

The prison commission has before it an application for revocation of the parole issued last year to Sam Knowles, wife-slayer, whom Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, one of Governor Talmadge's two opponents for re-election, has charged was freed without due process of law.

The application to revoke the parole was presented to the commission by R. W. Morrison, father of Knowles' wife. He says in the petition that the parole was not recommended by the judge who tried the case, the jurors or the solicitor-general.

Morrison contends that a recommendation signed by Mrs. Morrison was obtained while she was ill and "mentally incompetent."

Governor Talmadge said he had received the application and sent it to the prison commission because he does not have the authority to revoke a parole, which must be unanimously recommended by the commission before it may be granted by the governor.

Knowles served seven years of a life sentence before being freed last year.

CHURCH, PROBLEM TO OWNER, BLOWN TO KINDLING WOOD

J. A. Russell bought himself a church at a foreclosure sale, but in future downtown corner lots will probably be more to his liking.

Mr. Russell has had a lot of trouble with his church. He thought to put the property to a different use, but members of the congregation which had formerly occupied it, according to his petition filed some time ago in Fulton superior court, broke open the door and went on serenely worshipping.

Mr. Russell brought an injunction and it was finally agreed that the congregation could use the building provided they paid a rental of $3 per week. The rent was paid for three weeks by a receiver for the church, then the payments ceased.

As Mr. Russell apparently got more and more disgusted, the storm came along Wednesday and blew the church, known as the Welcome Brother Baptist, colored, to smithereens.

Mr. Russell applied Friday to Judge E. E. Pomeroy for permission to pick up the pieces and was appointed official salvager.

BETTER GOVERNMENT COMMISSION FORMING

The "better government commission" recommended by the May-June grand jury, and devoted to promote co-ordination of city and county agencies, secure remedial legislation and in other ways better the local governmental situation, came into being Friday with the appointment of the foreman of the past two and the present grand juries as a nominating committee to select a nine-member commission.

The grand jury committee will co-operate with the citizens' committee, which will be permanent. The grand jury members will be retired one at a time and replaced by the foreman of each new grand jury.

The members named Friday are John K. Otter, W. Eugene Harrington and R. E. Lee Reynolds. The plan will be presented to the next grand jury for its approval, it was announced.

GO GIRL

By PEGGY GADDIS.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Calissa Logan, who works in the Stanley cotton mill in the north, is dancing in a pavilion four miles from Stanley mill with friends, also employed there. After dancing with Jim Wright, who is "courtin'" her, she is on the floor with Bill Evans when they sight Kent Stanley, "the young boss," who has just arrived. Kent, handsome and well groomed in a white linen suit, presents a decided contrast to the men who work in the mill owned by his widowed mother. As he chats with two friends who come with him, Kent's attention is attracted by the pretty girl with red-brown hair who is dancing with Bill Evans. Their eyes meet. Kent leaves his companions, threads his way among the dancers and pauses beside Bill and Calissa. Touching Bill on the shoulder, he asks if he may finish the dance with his partner. When the music ceases Kent leads her from the pavilion and suggests they go for a drive in his roadster. Turning off the main highway, Kent stops the car. Calissa expects to talk, asking her name and what she does. He does try to kiss her later, and when she turns her cheek, he says he is sorry he is so repugnant to her. Asking where she lives, he starts for her home. When they are outside the mill town cottage of her uncle and aunt, with whom she lives, he says he has turned away because she suddenly realized how much she wanted him to kiss her. She kisses him willingly then, he says he must see more of her, and puts his fraternal ring on her finger. Feeling sure that his attractive mother will think Kent deserves her, he must get the ring back. He is waiting for Calissa when she quits work the next evening and asks her to go "picknick." NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY!

INSTALLMENT VIII.

"Hello, you!" said Kent, at last, smiling.

"Hello—yourself!" stammered Calissa, and tears sprang to her eyes, despite the faint tremulous smile that she tried to give him.

The tears broke the strain, and Kent suddenly sat down beside the bed. He took her hand in both of his own, and held it close and warm, as he bent over her.

"There's an apology in every one of these," he told her, swiftly nodding at the huge basket of glowing flowers. "I cut them myself, and the gardener gave notice three times before I'd finished—I thought if I brought enough of them, you might be so busy looking at them and admiring them that you'd give me a chance to—to—sort of square myself with you!"

"You—don't have to—to—square yourself with me!" said Calissa, simply. "Only—that night when you brought me home—and came back—I—Jim was there—and—he—I could make him let me go—and then—you wouldn't believe me—"

Kent bent and kissed Calissa, silencing the stammering words, and a warm wave of color sped over her face, and the tears vanished from her eyes, swallowed up in the sudden glow that leaped into life beneath the touch of his lips.

"I think I understand, dearest—and I should have been quick to see that you're waiting for an explanation that night—though you'll have to admit the evidence was pretty solidly against you and gone straight from my arms to his, with perfect willingness, and I was wild!" he told her, with a little wry smile for his anger and jealousy of that other night. "But since all this has happened—well, I knew you were not just a heartless little flirt, and that you hadn't lead the poor devil on—I sort of put two and two together—and they brought me here—"

He asked her to forgive me, and—take me back again!"

Calissa drew a long, unsteady, ecstatic breath, and the look in her eyes, the flaming, lovely wonder that burned there was all the answer he needed.

"Oh—Kent!" she whispered faintly, and did not wince as Kent put his arms about her, lifting her for his kiss, though she had been swept through her injured shoulder.

The wound healed with a rapidity that was a little surprising even considering Calissa's youth and abundant vitality. Kent called daily at the hospital, and her narrow, scrupulously clean room was made into a bower by his flowers.

There came, at last, the day when she was to be discharged from the hospital. Kent was to come for her in the beloved cream-colored roadster, but 3 o'clock, 4 o'clock and finally 5 o'clock came, still without a sign of him. Miss Britton called one of the doctors, who good-naturedly drove the girl home in his own car.

From Uncle John, the following day, Calissa learned that Kent had been called suddenly away to Atlanta by the grave illness of his mother, and Calissa, hugely relieved, told herself promptly that he had not forgotten her.

She went back to work on Monday, and found herself looking upon something vaguely in the nature of a heroine. Well, perhaps not quite that—but the fact that a man had tried to kill her and succeeded only in killing himself, for love of her, set her somewhat apart from other girls whose lives had not been marked by such an experience.

Calissa didn't mind especially. This being set aside, her more time for thoughts of Kent, and vague dreams of the future, and she was strangely happy, although each day that passed without a letter from Kent, or some sign from him, gave her a bad hour or more.

One evening, leaving the mill, she walked along Main street to the commissary for some purchases, and as she walked, a car rolled to the curb beside her, and a voice spoke to her. She turned, swiftly, but it was not the familiar and beautiful cream-colored roadster, but a coupe of a more ordinary and business-like make.

The driver got out, and stood in front of her—a young man, rather pudgy, as though fond of good living and not fond of exercise. His face was rudely beneath crisp blond hair which curled, and his eyes were blue and shallow.

"Hello—it's the cute little red-head!" he greeted her, gallily, offering her his hand. "You remember me, surely—don't break my heart by saying you don't! I was with old Kent at the pavilion that night you two took such a tumble to each other! I'm Jud Preston!"

Calissa put her hand in his for a moment, and felt awkward.

"I—how do you do? I'm Calissa Logan," she managed, after a moment.

"Of course—Calissa!" said Jud, with relief. "I saw Kent last week in Atlanta, and he told me to be sure and look you up the next time I was in town—this is such a lonesome dump he thought we might be able to cheer each other up!"

Calissa's color rose, and she looked at him, eagerly.

"You saw Kent in Atlanta? Tell me about him—how he is?" she begged, and Jud, reading far more in her eyes than she could have dreamed, grinned inwardly, cynically.

"Oh, Kent's fine!" he answered, lightly. "He sent his regards and said you were to keep me from being lonely!"

Calissa said, simply, "Did he? Then of course I'll try!"

"It shouldn't be hard, for a pretty girl like you. Just looking at you makes me feel brighter and more cheerful!" said Jud, smiling. "What say we have a bite to eat and go look at the moon? Or is there anything more exciting to do in Stanley Mills?"

"We could go over to Augusta to the movies," suggested Calissa. "It's only about 20 miles, and we could have dinner there!"

"Swell! I'm feeling brighter and brighter! Let's get going!"

Calissa hesitated, looking down at her steeplecrowned cotton frock. She had paid $2 for it at the commissary, and it would have cost $4.98 in any of the Augusta shops. She was helpless, but what would one want with a hat on a hot night like this?

The next moment, Jud was helping her into the coupe, and they were whirling off along the road to Augusta.

Jud kept up a running fire of amusing nonsense, answering her questions about Kent, grinning to himself as he realized where her interests lay. Damn it, but she was pretty! He was crazy about red hair, anyway, and when it had this bronze-gold sheen—the moonlight seemed to get all tangled up in it, and her profile was exciting—her mouth was red and looked as though it would be soft and warm to kiss—he tightened his hands on the wheel.

When they left the restaurant after dinner for the night, the moon, high and white and superb, filled the warm street.

"Look here," said Jud, persuasively. "It's much too hot a night for the movies—why don't we just go for a drive? There's a new drive around here? How about the reservoir road? Or Sand Bar Ferry road?"

"All right!" said Calissa, happily. Not for a moment did it occur to her to distrust him. He was Kent's friend, and Kent had sent word for her to entertain his friend.

She did not see the little gleam of satisfaction in Jud's eyes, as the car rolled down Broad street, and out Fifteenth, in the direction of Monte Sano, that stately, lovely old residence section that is the pride of Augusta.

Jud talked lightly, easily, as they rode, and Calissa, feeling that to be with this nice, amusing friend of Kent's was the next best thing to being with Kent, chattered away, gaily and easily.

Reaching the top of the hill, instead of turning into Monte Sano avenue, which would have taken them to the reservoir, Jud drove straight on into the Washington road. Lonely now, and deserted, with green hills and dark, mysterious woods dreaming in the cool white moonlight.

Jud brought the car to a stop beside the road, beneath the shadow of a group of tall pines, and switched off the ignition. He turned to Calissa, with a sudden purposeful air that startled her, dreaming of Kent, into sharp and instant awareness of her situation and its dangers.

Jud dropped his arm along the back of the seat, his hand cupping her shoulder, his face turned to her, looking down at her, and through the darkness, she caught the white pallor, the little gleam in his eyes, that marked his tensely, though he spoke lightly.

"And now—what about a little kiss?" he suggested, lightly.

"No!" said Calissa, sharply, and shrugged his hand away from her arm. His face darkened, his tone was resentful. "What do you mean—no?" he demanded, his eyes blazing.

"Just that—no!" said Calissa, with spirit. "You knew when you asked me to come with you, that I was engaged to Kent—"

Jud gave a little contemptuous bark of laughter.

"Engaged me eye! Don't make me laugh!"

"You said that Kent asked you to look me up—" began Calissa, but Jud cut in, sneering.

"Don't be a sap! You knew that was a lie, and so did I! I haven't seen Kent since the night at the pavilion. I was bored, and I saw you, and picked you up—I remembered seeing you at the pavilion with Kent—you know, my girl, you're easy on the eyes!"

Calissa was staring at him, wide-eyed, and shaken. "Then—then—it was Kent—" she began, but Jud cut her short.

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

A long letter has come from Charles Boegli, who asks me to help him scrap a book club and tells me that he is making a special hobby of astronomy. In his letter he says that he believes it is quite possible that there is life around Neptune, Uranus, Saturn and Jupiter.

I wish we were able to think of all other planets as homes of people something like us; but as I study the facts, I can find no sound reason to believe that people live on the "outer planets."

Mars is only one and a half times as far from the sun as the earth; but scientists declare that the air around Mars is cool, fairly close to the freezing point of water on the average.

Mars may not be too cool for human life, but what of the planet Jupiter, which is more than three times as far from the sun as Mars? There must be little warmth from the sun on Jupiter, and little light.

Saturn and Uranus are hundreds of millions of miles farther from the sun than Jupiter, and poor Neptune is 30 times as far from the sun as the earth. From Neptune the sun would look smaller than a plum.

Jupiter and Saturn are of great size, and it is possible that they have not "cooled down" in the way the earth has. It may be that volcanoes on Jupiter hurl forth lava and ashes, while geysers send out boiling water; but if that is the case, we have no certain proof of it. Volcanoes and geysers might do something to make up for lack of enough heat from the sun, but they do not supply proper warmth for animal life of the kind we know.

Recent studies appear to prove that there is no oxygen in the gas layers around the outer planets; and this is another reason to say that people like us could not live on them.

It may not be beyond reason to fancy that beings of some sort live even on such a frozen planet as Pluto, which is even farther away than Neptune; but if there are such beings they do not breathe in the way we do, and do not have such food as we do. They would need to be spirits which did not mind having the temperature lower than 300 degrees below zero!

If we are looking for beings like ourselves, the best we can do is to study the planets known as Mars and Venus, and possibly the asteroids, or "little planets." Venus is closer to the sun than the earth, but it is wrapped in fog, and is harder to study than Mars. The day may come when extremely clever inventors will find a way to see through the fog around Venus; and, if so, we may find proof of living beings, perhaps of living animals.

Cagney Socks Often
In Paramount Picture
"Here Comes the Navy," the current attraction at the Paramount theater, stars a James Cagney so tough that he kicks his own shins when nobody else is close enough to fight with. The red-haired, hard-headed Jimmy spends several reels of film trying to wallop the whole navy and comes out of the scrap with a medal and a promotion.

The story isn't much. Just a yarn about a tough little fellow who is an iron worker. He has a quarrel with a naval officer, played by Pat O'Brien, and joins the navy to even the score. Then he meets the officer's fair young sister and that is all there is to it—except that Jimmy doesn't give up and settle down as easily as most film heroes seem to.

Without time or reason the directors have dragged in some very excellent shots of the navy floating down the briny deep with flags flying. There are some good pictures also of the Macon, the giant navy dirigible that looks like an over-sized cigar.

Gloria Stuart makes a very sweet sister and an even sweeter girl friend for the sailor. Pat O'Brien holds up the reputation of the navy for "square shooting" and so forth. But the show belongs to Cagney. If you like him, you'll enjoy it—and if you don't, it might be wiser to let him keep the whole film to himself. Cagney doesn't put himself out very much to be dramatic and he has no classic profile, but he is too, too lucky when he wallops. And the whole film is one sock in the jaw after another.

W. C. Fields' Admirers

In fairness to anyone who might chance to examine this material in the hope of gleaming some idea on the merits or demerits of "The Old-Fashioned Way," this criticism is prefaced with the admission that the writer is a Fields fan. And, since this week's Fox feature is about 85 per cent Fields, it can be seen that our reaction will be about as unbiased as the report of a dog lover on one of Rin Tin Tin's antics.

We retained enough clarity of vision between chuckles at our hero to realize that the Old Roman of low comedy has had better vehicles. But with Fields about the premises, the only way we can differentiate between the pictures is to say that some are better than others but all are good. In this one he is the Great McGonigle, head of a fly-by-night repertory company of the late lamented Nineties. He has many admirers, but none as devoted as his wife, who is a beautiful daughter. In the course of the proceedings he loses most of the first with the aid of the second and gets the third happily married to a wealthy youth who trails the show.

Baby LeRoy, quite a big lad now, boasts the ineffectual McGonigle with many announcements in a decidedly stilted vein. The audience seemed to enjoy these sequences greatly. Some of the better passages are those in which the repertory is giving that dramatic masterpiece, "The Drunkard." Fields does a juggling bit which reveals he has lost little of his manual nimbleness through his vacation from this type of endeavor.

If you like Fields you will like this, but perhaps wish for something a bit more on the line of "Tillie and Gus." If you don't like Fields, you should have stopped reading this at the first paragraph.

The short subjects include a vintage musical short, cartoon, travelogue and newsreel.

TEXAN SHOTS GIRL
AND ENDS OWN LIFE

BEAUMONT, Texas, July 20.—(AP) Miss Peggy Posey was shot and critically wounded last night by an admirer who killed himself after leaving a note that said:

"I can't go on without Peggy."

The man was C. J. Taylor, Dallas salesman. His wife in Dallas was notified. She asked undertakers here to notify a sister, Mrs. Ola Mae Allen, of Rialto, Tenn., who would make funeral arrangements.

MAINE SENATORS HIT
FLORIDA PULP PLANT

PORTLAND, Maine, July 20.—(AP) United States Senators Frederick Hale and Wallace H. White Jr. today had telegraphed protests to Washington against the proposed expansion of the wood pulp industry in the south through a government PWA grant. The senators said that establishment of a $5,000,000 pulp plant at Fernandina, Fla., with government funds would be in direct competition with the industry of Maine.

HARRIMAN MILLS GETS EAGLE BACK

Plant Expected To Re-open Monday; 600 Workers To Return.

HARRIMAN, Tenn., July 20.—(AP)—The Blue Eagle, which has been in dispute in this strike-torn mill town the past three months, got a well-coming return today.

Assured that the National Recovery Administration was returning the Blue Eagle to the Harriman hosiery mills and that the plant would re-open Monday, merchants, who had taken their NRA insignia down in sympathy with the mills, plastered them on window fronts again.

Merchants were cheerful over the likelihood of the town's largest industry operating again.

Over 600 workers who lost their jobs when the mills closed June 25, after losing its Blue Eagle for alleged violation of labor provisions of the national recovery act, looked forward to employment again.

However, A. E. Whitson, a representative of strikers who walked out of the mills last October on grounds that the company had dismissed 23 workers for joining the Textile Workers' Union, expressed dissatisfaction with the proposed agreement under which the mills get the Blue Eagle back.

He charged that the agreement "was made without the knowledge or approval of the strikers."

Under the agreement, the Harriman mills would re-employ 25 strikers immediately and thereafter "three out of every four hired shall be strikers until 25 strikers are employed."

However, if the agreement is not accepted in 30 days and the strike called off, the company would not be pledged to re-employ strikers. The agreement provided that the mills would have its Blue Eagle, regardless of the strikers' acceptance.

RETURNING OF EAGLE MEETS OPPOSITION
WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—Labor objected vigorously today to NRA's new agreement with the Harriman hosiery mills, restoring the Blue Eagle to the idle Tennessee plant.

Officials of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, whose vice president, Fred G. Held, was kidnapped when he visited Harriman, said in Philadelphia that "without a satisfactory agreement regarding collective bargaining it is in our opinion a gross betrayal of an understanding reached at the White House last March."

gathering place for musicians both great and small, and a Bohemian atmosphere prevailed. He was a modest means but held a large store of the wealth of friendship. Many a struggling musician remembers small acts of quiet philanthropy, as he never failed to heed the call of a musician in distress.

Mays Badgett is survived by his wife, two brothers, Sam Badgett, of Chattanooga, and Matt Badgett, of Philadelphia; three sisters, Lutha Martin, of Chattanooga; Mrs. S. C. Smith, Memphis, and Miss Rosella Badgett, of Knoxville.

Funeral services will include Elmer Coleman, Ben Polier, George Linder, Charles Fry, Earl Landers, Captain Scott Schmidt, Edgar Bedford and Norman Harper.

ARTISTS' GUILD PLANS EXHIBIT IN OCTOBER
Plans for an art exhibit to be held sometime in October were made at a meeting of the Artists' Guild of Atlanta Friday night at the Chamber of Commerce building. All members of the guild are planning to participate in the event. Wilbur Kurtz, chairman of the exhibition, announced following the meeting.

A report of the public art committee, of which J. M. Colgan is chairman, was also heard. Two new members, Miss Millicent Strange Edson and Dexter Grant Dunlap, were received in the organization. The next meeting will be held on October 3.

Victim of Pool

GORDON PRUITT.

DEAD, 48 INJURED Further Misconduct Charged To Fairbanks, Lady Ashley

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—New charges of misconduct during recent months were made today against Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Lady Sylvia Ashley on behalf of Lord Ashley, who is suing for a divorce from his former chorus girl wife.

The allegation was made that the famous motion picture actor and Lady Ashley, who are in police custody, continued misconduct at "various places and various dates," which are cited, since Fairbanks was first named as co-respondent in the case on February 5.

Fairbanks and Lady Ashley will be served, Lord Ashley's attorneys said, but it probably take several days. Arrangements for the service are to be made through their attorneys.

The supplementary petition, an attorney explained, requires a response within 14 days if the couple wish to resist it.

Lord Ashley's lawyers explained that the new petition brings the case "up to date" and will be treated with the original documents as a whole when the case comes to trial in October.

As they did in the original case, Fairbanks and Lady Ashley are expected to take steps to put themselves in a position to defend the suit if they care to do so.

(At Monte Carlo, where Fairbanks and Lady Ashley are visiting the latter's sister, a Mrs. Black, it was said that neither would discuss the supplementary petition.)

Fairbanks and Lady Ashley were the ninth earl of Shaftesbury, married Sylvia Hawkes, mannequin and chorus girl who had become a stage star, and a high society figure.

The couple lived together less than a year, and the suit was filed last February naming Fairbanks, as co-respondent, and Lady Ashley as co-respondent.

Lady Ashley and Fairbanks flew to Paris in the same plane July 7 and subsequently went to Monte Carlo.

There, the attackers climbed upon the vehicle.

Fire Into Mob.
Shots rang out—into the air. Another burst, lower and directly into the mob, was the signal for general firing by the authorities. Simultaneously, police fired into the crowd, spoke when a crowd of demonstrators there sought to break through the lines.

Four persons, police said, fell wounded in the second outbreak. Meanwhile two strikers climbed upon the truck, then dropped off, blood dripping from wounds. Others, in a standing fast, refused to give up their positions, and the police, despite orders to fall back, stumbled and staggered as leaden pellets found their bodies, the shots ricocheting from sidewalks and street.

Where the truck, standing amid the disorder that brought wounds to at least six more, was still under control, its driver and one guard inside the cab.

Fists flailing and clubs flying, the strikers sought to drive off onrush of police. Some were captured and placed under technical arrest.

PACIFIC DANGER POINTS SHIFTED TOWARD NORTH
SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(AP)—More rioting threats of another general strike, and the possibility of additional military rule overhanging the Pacific coast today despite the abandonment of labor mass walkouts in the San Francisco area.

The city had returned virtually to normal but 2,800 carmen of the Market Street Railway declared they were on strike because of separate grievances. The 2,500 teamsters were back to their jobs to move everything back waterfront cargo.

In Alameda county (Oakland, Berkeley and other cities) where 47,000 teamsters were on strike, the mass strike was officially declared off last night and all unions returned to work. The 1,200 teamsters in that area were back to work, but decided to continue refusing to move goods from the piers.

POLICEMEN'S GAS ATTACK ROUTES SEATTLE PICKETS
SEATTLE, July 20.—(AP)—About 2,080 pickets were routed from a strike-blockaded section of the Seattle waterfront today in a terrific gas attack by 300 policemen personally commanded by Mayor Charles L. Smith.

The advance opened a pier for the movement of freight trains. Hundreds suffered from the great cloud of tear and nausea gas. A score of the police were given emergency treatment and several were taken to hospitals.

Stickers scattered quickly when the gas barrage reached the height of its intensity. The engagement lasted about 15 minutes. Picket forces made an estimate of their casualties. They carried away for their own injured.

Twelve arrests were made. A man identified as J. Munoz, 49, a seaman, allegedly was carrying a knife. The others were taken in a raid on the seamen's union headquarters. No formal charges were filed.

While apparently no one was hurt seriously, virtually all of the 2,300 combatants suffered from the tear and nausea gas, even Mayor Smith.

Seattle's casualty list since the start of the strike May 9 stands at two dead, 200 injured, 300 slightly hurt (mostly bruises and cuts from clubs and rocks and burns from gas bombs) and something over 2,000 gassed.

WATERFRONT OPERATIONS RESUMED AT PORTLAND
PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—(AP)—Waterfront operations were resumed here today without a show of disorder while threats of a general strike and military rule hovered in the background.

About 150 pickets fell back upon orders of heavily armed police as industrial interests moved to slash the fetters of a longshoremen's and marine workers' strike that had gripped Portland harbor 15 days.

Within 10 miles of the city more than 1,000 guardsmen were enroute, ready to move into the city in case of violence. Opposite this situation, aroused by a show of disorder, was the calling of a mass walkout if the guardsmen were brought in.

Eighty protected workers began loading the steamer San Julian and two intercoastal vessels. Nineteen tank trucks moved gasoline from storage in the harbor area for distribution to service stations under police escort to relieve a acute shortage that had lasted 10 days.

Steamship companies announced their service would be on schedule before Monday.

Police Fire Into Mob In Effort To Break Strike Blockade.

York, arrived in San Francisco—some of the short-lived general sympathy strike—to attempt mediation to settle the Portland longshoremen's strike, the joint committee of maritime unions said their strike, effective since May 9, would continue.

San Francisco, its four-day general strike terminated, saw wheels of industry begin to approach normal.

Conservative labor leaders at Portland promised to refrain from a general strike pending arbitration attempts at San Francisco, but were indignant over the mob action of the Oregon national guard for water front duty.

The Brotherhood of Teamsters and Automobile Drivers voted officially last night to end the eight-day strike in sympathy with striking longshoremen, and "do all work without reservation."

Bystander Killed.
With the assertion that the general strike had "accomplished its purpose," 47,000 members of East Bay unions returned to work in the Oakland, Cal., district. A bystander injured in a clash between communists and citizens at Chabot Park last Monday died.

The wheels of commerce moved again at San Francisco, but chamber commerce officials said losses caused by the general strike there would run high into the millions.

After an absence of more than three months, the Blue Eagle was returned to the Harriman Hosiery Mills at Harriman, Tenn., and strikers were looking forward to getting their jobs back. Union officials at Washington, however, protested that there had not been a satisfactory agreement reached on collective bargaining.

Chicago Bus Trouble.
Chicago's transportation system was threatened with announcement that union drivers of the Chicago Motor Coach Company would strike Tuesday unless their union was recognized.

A general meeting of the Licensed Teamsters' Protective Association was called for next week at Detroit to discuss the teamsters' strike, now six weeks old.

More than 500 bean pickers, demanding higher wages, stayed away from the fields of the United Packing Company at Rome, N. Y.

Pickets at the Kohler Manufacturing Company plant at Kohler, Wis., made no attempt to interfere as the first carload of coal since Monday entered the yards. A federal mediator led workers' strike situation since bringing on a water shortage in the city.

Union truck drivers of Duluth went to Minneapolis to seek a conference with federal mediators working on the truck drivers' strike situation there.

Alabama on Edge.
Rumors that a motorcycle of 500 striking textile workers from Huntsville, Ala., would march to the Tennessee river bridge between Decatur, Ala., and Huntsville, and attempt to persuade other textile workers to join the strike caused special deputies to guard the bridge.

Preparations were made to reopen the strike of the company plant at Greenville, S. C., next week. It has been closed two months.

Roy Pyle, Pacific coast representative of the American Radio Telegraphers' Union, said a strike had been called against the Grace Line and that some 500 operators would go out demanding higher wages and better working conditions.

In Washington William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement contended that the San Francisco workers made a "mistake" when they engaged in a sympathetic strike, but acted "wisely" when they terminated it.

MINNEAPOLIS TENSE AFTER STRIKE BATTLE
MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—(AP)—An ominous tension pervaded Minneapolis tonight as an aftermath of a stubborn battle between striking truck drivers and police raged in the city.

A truckload of merchandise in which one man was killed and half a hundred wounded, clamped down over the identity of the dead man and his affiliation as well as another said by Assistant General E. Walsh to have been wounded probably near the Chicago-Bergen Company when pickets of the strikers attacked a police-escorted truck in defiance of union orders that no trucks move.

Several hours later it was announced that the dead man was a striker but his name was not given out. Otto Lefdaal, another striker, was so seriously wounded that relatives were summoned to his bedside.

Walsh's guardsmen moved in force into the contested area near the market place where two special police were killed in the 11-day strike of truck drivers last May.

Thirty-four hundred guardsmen were ordered into the city. Governor Floyd B. Olson said after a report from the walkout Monday night to settle the strike, considered declaring martial law.

"The national guard can either aid civil authorities in maintaining law and order or take full responsibility through martial law," Walsh said.

Forty-eight Injured.
Forty-eight men, several of them mostly specialists in vicious clash between strikers and police, were taken to hospitals with wounds. Thirty-five others nursed beaten heads.

Two policemen, Sergeant Austin Brannon, 38, and Patrolman John Green, were among the casualties. Brannon was slugged. Green was shot in the leg.

Machine gun companies, moving under orders of Walsh, took command of the area and cleared it.

Federal mediators, the Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, framed a tentative plan which they hoped to build a final agreement terminating the walkout.

It embraced classification of market firms and all other industries into two separate groups; provision for a definite wage scale and authority of the union, No. 574, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, to represent workers in individual plants in collective bargaining if the plant's employees desired.

The employers' advisory committee turned down the proposal and the mediators sought another conference with them. The plan has not been submitted to the strikers.

On Two Fronts.
Shooting broke out almost simultaneously on two fronts, concealing for a time the fact that there were two distinct battles between police ordered by Chief of Police Michael Johannes to shoot if necessary, and strikers.

Police lines had been formed a block from the Slocum Bergen Company, whence the truck of merchandise had started to move about 2 p. m., central standard time.

It was just under way its convoy of police in automobiles when a small truck, jammed with strikers, rushed up. Defying police who ordered

DEAD, 48 INJURED Further Misconduct Charged To Fairbanks, Lady Ashley

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—New charges of misconduct during recent months were made today against Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Lady Sylvia Ashley on behalf of Lord Ashley, who is suing for a divorce from his former chorus girl wife.

The allegation was made that the famous motion picture actor and Lady Ashley, who are in police custody, continued misconduct at "various places and various dates," which are cited, since Fairbanks was first named as co-respondent in the case on February 5.

Fairbanks and Lady Ashley will be served, Lord Ashley's attorneys said, but it probably take several days. Arrangements for the service are to be made through their attorneys.

The supplementary petition, an attorney explained, requires a response within 14 days if the couple wish to resist it.

Lord Ashley's lawyers explained that the new petition brings the case "up to date" and will be treated with the original documents as a whole when the case comes to trial in October.

As they did in the original case, Fairbanks and Lady Ashley are expected to take steps to put themselves in a position to defend the suit if they care to do so.

(At Monte Carlo, where Fairbanks and Lady Ashley are visiting the latter's sister, a Mrs. Black, it was said that neither would discuss the supplementary petition.)

Fairbanks and Lady Ashley were the ninth earl of Shaftesbury, married Sylvia Hawkes, mannequin and chorus girl who had become a stage star, and a high society figure.

The couple lived together less than a year, and the suit was filed last February naming Fairbanks, as co-respondent, and Lady Ashley as co-respondent.

Lady Ashley and Fairbanks flew to Paris in the same plane July 7 and subsequently went to Monte Carlo.

There, the attackers climbed upon the vehicle.

Fire Into Mob.
Shots rang out—into the air. Another burst, lower and directly into the mob, was the signal for general firing by the authorities. Simultaneously, police fired into the crowd, spoke when a crowd of demonstrators there sought to break through the lines.

Four persons, police said, fell wounded in the second outbreak. Meanwhile two strikers climbed upon the truck, then dropped off, blood dripping from wounds. Others, in a standing fast, refused to give up their positions, and the police, despite orders to fall back, stumbled and staggered as leaden pellets found their bodies, the shots ricocheting from sidewalks and street.

Where the truck, standing amid the disorder that brought wounds to at least six more, was still under control, its driver and one guard inside the cab.

Fists flailing and clubs flying, the strikers sought to drive off onrush of police. Some were captured and placed under technical arrest.

PACIFIC DANGER POINTS SHIFTED TOWARD NORTH
SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(AP)—More rioting threats of another general strike, and the possibility of additional military rule overhanging the Pacific coast today despite the abandonment of labor mass walkouts in the San Francisco area.

The city had returned virtually to normal but 2,800 carmen of the Market Street Railway declared they were on strike because of separate grievances. The 2,500 teamsters were back to their jobs to move everything back waterfront cargo.

In Alameda county (Oakland, Berkeley and other cities) where 47,000 teamsters were on strike, the mass strike was officially declared off last night and all unions returned to work. The 1,200 teamsters in that area were back to work, but decided to continue refusing to move goods from the piers.

POLICEMEN'S GAS ATTACK ROUTES SEATTLE PICKETS
SEATTLE, July 20.—(AP)—About 2,080 pickets were routed from a strike-blockaded section of the Seattle waterfront today in a terrific gas attack by 300 policemen personally commanded by Mayor Charles L. Smith.

The advance opened a pier for the movement of freight trains. Hundreds suffered from the great cloud of tear and nausea gas. A score of the police were given emergency treatment and several were taken to hospitals.

Stickers scattered quickly when the gas barrage reached the height of its intensity. The engagement lasted about 15 minutes. Picket forces made an estimate of their casualties. They carried away for their own injured.

Twelve arrests were made. A man identified as J. Munoz, 49, a seaman, allegedly was carrying a knife. The others were taken in a raid on the seamen's union headquarters. No formal charges were filed.

While apparently no one was hurt seriously, virtually all of the 2,300 combatants suffered from the tear and nausea gas, even Mayor Smith.

Seattle's casualty list since the start of the strike May 9 stands at two dead, 200 injured, 300 slightly hurt (mostly bruises and cuts from clubs and rocks and burns from gas bombs) and something over 2,000 gassed.

WATERFRONT OPERATIONS RESUMED AT PORTLAND
PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—(AP)—Waterfront operations were resumed here today without a show of disorder while threats of a general strike and military rule hovered in the background.

About 150 pickets fell back upon orders of heavily armed police as industrial interests moved to slash the fetters of a longshoremen's and marine workers' strike that had gripped Portland harbor 15 days.

Within 10 miles of the city more than 1,000 guardsmen were enroute, ready to move into the city in case of violence. Opposite this situation, aroused by a show of disorder, was the calling of a mass walkout if the guardsmen were brought in.

Eighty protected workers began loading the steamer San Julian and two intercoastal vessels. Nineteen tank trucks moved gasoline from storage in the harbor area for distribution to service stations under police escort to relieve a acute shortage that had lasted 10 days.

Steamship companies announced their service would be on schedule before Monday.

STRIKE 'MINORITY RULE' PLAYED BY JOHNSON
LOS ANGELES, July 20.—(AP)—With the declaration that the general strike in San Francisco was "the most critical moment in recent history" and that it was "dictatorship tyranny-minority rule," General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, disclosed today what he said was the "inside story" of the widespread walkout of union workers.

Johnson criticized both the unions and employers.

"What you have to go to a strike committee to get permission to have a bottle of milk for the baby, you may know how fully the public will be subjected to a little group with a special interest," said Johnson, "and I care not whether that group be of big or little importance, or whether they be rich or poor."

"It is minority rule. It is dictatorship. It is the end of democracy. It is tyranny and not to be tolerated for one moment by a free people."

One extremist on the labor side actually had that system in effect when I arrived at San Francisco. But the extremists on the other side were just as bad. The pressure from a small group of wealthy men to declare martial law was perfectly terrific," Johnson said.

Johnson spoke twice during the afternoon, delivering a speech at the Grand Central airport and the Hollywood bowl. He flew here from San Francisco, where he is spokesman in the government's efforts to mediate strike troubles.

Near the end of his speech, Johnson paid tribute to George Creel, aspirant for the democratic nomination for gov-

HEAT DEATH TOLL INCREASED TO 70

Mercury Mounts to 112 in Midwest; Other Areas Still Sweltering.

By the Associated Press.
More than 70 deaths had been recorded last night as the severe heat wave engulfing the plains between the Appalachian and Rocky mountains continued unabated for the second day, with little prospects of general relief.

A reading of 112 degrees was recorded yesterday at Carlinville, Ill., 107.9. The blazing sun burned new records for the summer, pushing the mercury a few unpleasant fractions higher in some places than in Thursday's stifling prelude.

The great plains, withered, wilted and crying for rain, suffered the most. In Lincoln, Neb., it was 107 degrees, intensifying the most critical crop condition and water famine in years. Kansas City also sweltered at 107 degrees.

At least 22 deaths were attributed to the furious heat yesterday, bringing the toll of the two-day wave to more than 70; six died in Chicago, one in Joliet, Ill.; seven in Nebraska; two in Kansas; one in New York; five in Iowa.

A gentle lake breeze cut temperatures in Chicago after the hottest night of the city's summer.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents are asked to use their names here in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Every problem column editor receives the weekly quota of questions as to the wisdom of a man's marrying a woman many years his junior. Almost without exception the counselors cry aloud "Don't do it—there is nothing but trouble bound to be in a marriage where a great gulf of years separates a man from his wife." However, this advice, while sweeping generalizations, may be the wrong advice for many couples considering taking the momentous step.

"Nature," says Albert Jay Nock, "has little regard for unutilized good intentions and she treats them with vicious severity. Nature declares that men and women shall mate within their own generation and those who defy the decree must look to some other force than nature for the successful outcome of their experiment. Some have defied her and been immeasurably happy. A larger number, of course, have defied her and been immeasurably unhappy. According to the law of averages, marriage of a man and woman between whom exists a great disparity of years is doomed to failure. Yet nature does respect intelligent good intentions and the old man and young woman who get married with intelligent as well as good intentions are frequently able to circumvent nature."

The old arguments against such a marriage are threadbare. There is hardly any use to enumerate them. The cult of youth makes a gulf of interests, of enthusiasms, of physical vigor. The old man wants peace and quietude in the comfortable armchair. The younger woman craves excitement, amusement, diversion on the outside. Reared in different schools of thought and behavior, their sympathies are separate and distinct. They live in two worlds that scarcely touch, much less meet and merge.

Yet when nature and science have turned their thumbs down on the old man and young woman waiting at the altar, when counselors have said their nay, when families have interposed their objections and friends have "put them mouths on them," the old man and young woman who get married with intelligent as well as good intentions are frequently able to circumvent nature.

Who has read Hilda Rose's Stump Farm without experiencing a sensation of sympathetic delight at her life with "Daddy"? Did not a president of our own United States have a happy married life with a woman who was his ward and young enough to be his daughter? I recall a charming old lady of 80 who led a pretty story of her romance with a husband 30 years older than she. They distinguished themselves by rearing 13 children. Though she was left a widow at 50 (a reasonable certainty that every woman must face when she marries out of her generation) she never lost an opportunity to advocate a woman's marrying a man older than herself.

Certainly it is true that the higher one goes in the scale of culture, the greater the chance for happiness to come out of such a marriage. Common intellectual interests over and Miss Phipps Weds Jim F. Hadaway.

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 20.—The marriage of Miss Mary Phipps, of Carrollton, and Jim Franklin Hadaway was solemnized here Saturday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Iby Henderson, in the presence of a small group of friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henderson before an improvised altar of palms and ferns arranged in the living room. Miss St. Clair, of West Georgia College, played the nuptial music.

Miss Sarah Margaret Hopkins, of Atlanta, lighted the tapers at the altar. Her gown was of pastel-colored tulle, and her shoulder bouquet was of talisman roses. Miss Elizabeth Henderson was maid of honor and wore coral organdy and carried an arm bouquet of gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, W. W. Phipps, of Carrollton, was lovingly veiled by a cousin, Miss Henderson. The bridegroom was carried to the altar by his father, W. W. Phipps, and the ceremony was an informal reception. The dining table held as a centerpiece a two-tiered cake of white organdy. The bride and bridegroom were Miss Kathleen Pope served punch, and assisting Rev. and Mrs. Henderson in receiving and entertaining were Miss Louise Phipps, of Carrollton, and Mrs. Phil Hadaway.

Later in the evening the bride and bridegroom left for a motor trip, after which they will make their home in the Cramer apartments in Carrollton.

above domestic interests may be a source of pleasure. To a man and a woman, the correcting hand of time doesn't touch. The old man's tendency to reminisce may find its counterpart in the younger woman's history of school life and the solving of many of the problems of youth which cause a great many people worry today.

A wise man once told me that he was glad he had been trained in his youth to be a biologist and he thinks that a great many of our young families would do better to devote their physical needs and follow that education up with an understanding of their mental and emotional needs. It will mean a great deal to the success of school life and the solving of many of the problems of youth which cause a great many people worry today.

There is another little matter that plays a big part in the successful mating of youth with age. It is the matter of money. The old man's productive years are past. If he hasn't accumulated a competency he never will. If he hasn't put by enough to support a wife he cannot lay claim to intelligent good intentions toward the woman he asks to marry him. If he can't support her she has to support him, and while youthful romance is her to undertake such a task ungrudgingly and uncompromisingly, when she marries an old man she expects to get a livelihood from the experiment.

Many couples have been happily married despite the gulf of years that lay between them but they have had an equipment of competency, native geniality, common interests and a common sense enough to know that they had to circumvent nature in securing their happiness.

Miss Mary Brown And Mr. Brougham Feeted at Parties

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hastings entertained on Friday evening at a buffet supper at their home in Decatur complementing Miss Mary Brown and Marcus Brougham, whose marriage will be solemnized this afternoon at the First Baptist church in Decatur. ## IT'S UP TO THE WOMEN

By Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

The following is one of a series of 60 articles in which the First Lady of the Land tells what she thinks about a variety of subjects close to the heart of all modern women. Every word has been written by Mrs. Roosevelt herself.

LI—Study Your Children.

In many communities there is a great lack of knowledge particularly among the young mothers as to child hygiene and the care and feeding of children. It seems to me that if it is possible for the home and the school to co-operate so that young mothers may be educated as to their children's physical needs, and follow that education up with an understanding of their mental and emotional needs, it will mean a great deal to the success of school life and the solving of many of the problems of youth which cause a great many people worry today.

A wise man once told me that he was glad he had been trained in his youth to be a biologist and he thinks that a great many of our young families would do better to devote their physical needs and follow that education up with an understanding of their mental and emotional needs. ## Miss Taylor Weds J. A. Murray In Charleston

Friends will learn with surprise of the marriage of Miss Madeline Mae Taylor, of Asheville and Charlotte, N. C., and Julius Allen Murray, of Charleston, formerly of this city. The ceremony was a quiet event of Wednesday, taking place in Charleston, where the young couple will make their home.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Montgomery Taylor, of Asheville and Charlotte, and is a popular member of the younger contingent of those cities.

She attended Queen's-Chloris College in Charlotte and the Southern Workshop School of Art in Asheville. She is a member of the Beta Pi Theta French Society and is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi, national social sorority.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray, of Atlanta, and is a brother of Mrs. C. Thibadeau, Mrs. J. H. Crosland, Stewart and John Murray.

He attended the University School for Boys here and later studied at Georgia Tech, where he was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity. At the present time Mr. Murray is connected with A. G. Rhodes & Company, of Charleston.

Highland Day To Be Celebrated

A dramatic pageant entitled "Highland Passes in Revue" will be the feature of the Highland day program on Saturday, July 21. The play will be given promptly at 3 o'clock. The play will be in a toy repair shop at midnight. The masters of ceremony will be Dorothy Henry and Margaret Fitzgerald. The following skits will be portrayed during the program, which will depict the activities carried out in the regular summer program, including inspection, swimming, nature lore, first-aid, stunt night, health and social circles. She has been invited to be the guest artist in a concert for the Three Arts Club. Miss Waldman recently was the inspiration of a round of social gayeties in St. Louis, Mo., where she also gave a program.

The theme of the pageant has been outlined by the counselors under the direction of Misses Jacqueline Poole and Byrd Strickland. Girls taking leads in the pageant are Jacqueline Little, Dorothy and Barbara Henry, Margaret Matthews, Jeanette Matthews, Jerry Hamman, Genevieve Smith, Ann Carter, Katherine Crabbe, Margaret Fitzgerald, Tacy Moore, Allene Crawford, Alice Connel and others.

A small silver loving cup for the best all-around junior camper will be awarded when the best all-around senior camper receives the cup which is awarded annually to the girl who is judged by the board of counselors to be the best camper. Mrs. Luther Rosser, president of the Y. W. C. A. board of directors, has donated the junior cup. A tennis tournament, composed of the campers will be completed by Highland day, and the winners of this annual tourney will receive the Lucy Marvin Adams trophy at 6 o'clock.

A celebration will be held in the dining room in the form of a birthday party for the fifteenth birthday of the dining room.

All friends of the campers and the camp are invited to be present.

FINALS SET FOR 36 HOLES AT EAST LAKE

Hunter Falls, 4 to 3, While Mulherin Is Beaten, 3 and 2.

By Roy White.

Two champions, Billy McWilliams, of Rome, defending his Georgia amateur crown and Julius Hughes, Druid Hills star and holder of the city open and amateur titles, will battle 36 holes today over the No. 1 East Lake course for the 1934 Georgia amateur championship.

McWilliams entered the finals with victories over Gene Gaillard, Atlanta, 4-2, and L. R. Hunter, Atlanta, 4-3, in the quarter and semi-finals Friday, after eliminating W. Smith, Rome, 5-3, and Jack Bothamley Jr., Atlanta, 2-1, in the earlier rounds.

Hughes won his right to the finals with wins over James H. Smith, Atlanta, 4-3, and Frank Mulherin Jr., Augusta city champion, 3-2, Friday, and eliminating Dick Garlington, Atlanta, 3-2, and Dan Sage Jr., Atlanta, 1 up, in the previous rounds.

STARTING TIME. Play in the morning round will start at 9:45 o'clock with the afternoon round scheduled to open at 2 o'clock. Final and other flights will be played this morning over the 18-hole course only.

There is little to choose between the players today. Both have played consistently, though not sensational golf. McWilliams played one of his best rounds in the semi-finals to eliminate Hunter, while Hughes played unusually good in the quarter finals Friday morning to eliminate Moore. Hughes was putting for birdies on every green except two, and that is golf good enough to beat almost any player.

There was some mighty fine golf in the two semi-final matches and both were well worth the while.

McWilliams started strong and won the third and fifth holes, but lost the first hole. He was in a fine approach putt at the sixth and halved the hole. McWilliams won the seventh with a par four and halved the next two to go six up at the turn.

McWilliams birdied the 10th and halved the 11th to go seven up and seven to go.

FIRST HOLE.

Hunter won his first hole at the 12th and prolonged the match by winning the 13th and 14th, but lost the match in halving the 15th. Hunter played his best golf on the back nine, but was unable to overcome the big lead that McWilliams overlaid on the first nine.

McWilliams' golf was his best of the tournament thus far and he will be tough today to go along with the fairways and into the rough. His game is sound from tee to cup, with nothing spectacular. His golf is almost machine like.

After an unusually good "hot" round against Moore Friday morning, Hughes was erratic in the afternoon round, but a long putt to the lead on one. Both Hughes and Mulherin had a medal score of 40 for the first nine.

Mulherin, the Augusta city champion, was straight down the middle with every drive, but his putting was unsteady. He sank several long ones but missed a correspondingly number of short putts.

That long putt at nine unnerved Mulherin somewhat, for Hughes birdied the tenth to square the match. Hughes won the eleventh to go one up and from then on he was never down. He went to the green and picked up the thirteenth and run another long putt into the cup for half at the fourteenth. Hughes drove into the rough and Mulherin played his best shot of the tournament to the green, and sank the second putt, to go two up. Hughes won the match at the sixteenth with a par three.

FINALS TODAY. In the finals today Atlanta will be represented with 13 players, with five visitors battling for silverware.

McWilliams, in the championship; Dupont Kirten Jr., Columbus; Howell Holts, Newman, former University of Georgia football star, in the fourth; Albert Fahy Jr., Rome, in the seventh, and John Parrott, Valdosta, in the eighth, are the visitors seeking championships.

Atlanta's finalists are Hughes, Druid Hills, in the championship; Bill Healey, Capital City, in the second; Charlie Black Jr., Capital City, in the third; Stanley Holditch, Druid Hills, in the fourth; John Ridgely, Lake, in the seventh; Bill Cane, Ansley Park, and George Rudolph, East Lake, in the eighth, and John Westmoreland, Capital City, in the consolation.

The championship flight was not alone in producing some good golf. For Albert Fahy, young Rome starter, a 35 on the nine holes, and was eliminated. Wells Moore, Dalton, 7-5, in the seventh flight. Dupont Kirten Jr., Columbus Country Club champion, has played some good golf in the consolation, and was in the third flight. The youngest star, won 6-5, from Jennings Gordon, Rome, in the first match, but all others have been won by one-up scores. He defeated John Davis, Atlanta municipal star, on the 20th green Friday morning, and beat Pete Slayton, a fellow townsman, 1 up, in the semi-final. Kirten won a little golf money and an unusually fine tournament player.

EMORY VS. TECH. And Kirten is not the only young star who has given trouble, for Crawford Rainwater, Emory, has been placed in the championship division play-off, plays Bill Healey, the medalist, today for the second flight title. Rainwater, Emory freshman linksmen, was two down going to 16 Friday against Frank Ridley, Georgia Tech star, but won, 1 up, with some good golf. Stanley Holditch, Druid Hills, and John Ridgely, Georgia Tech player, are other young stars who will battle today for silverware.

The tournament has been one of the most successful in recent years. There were 150 entries, and par was not broken during the qualifying round. Scores of 80 had to play for four positions in the championship division and a score of 94 was eliminated from the field. There was plenty of competition to begin with.

The matches have been closer than ever before, even in the lower flights and today's play should be even better than the others.

Atlanta Aces Draw Madison County Team

MACON, Ga., July 20.—(AP)—Pairings for the annual state sandlot baseball tournament sponsored by the American Legion, to be held here August 1-4, were announced today.

Because 17 teams are entered a preliminary contest on Wednesday afternoon, August 1, will be necessary. Rochelle and Griffin will meet in the extra game.

The draw for the first round proper for August 2 placed Elberton against Moultrie, Americus against Macon, Conyers against Albany, Acworth against the winner of the Rochelle-Griffin game, Athens against Gainesville, Decatur against the winner of the Macon-Cartersville and Atlanta against Madison county.

The draw was made from a hat today by the committee in charge, Ben T. Watkins, local Legion post commander, and Charles Morgan, umpire-in-chief for the tournament.

Mrs. Bill Henry Beats "Patsy" In Net Match

By Betty Mathis.

Both mother and daughter put up a beautiful fight, but experience coupled with excellent striking and placement shots won a semi-final match of the women's tennis tournament for Mrs. Bill Henry, of Los Angeles, Cal., in a straight set over her daughter, Patsy. Scores were 6-3, 6-2.

Patsy played in championship form, displaying rare skill in 14 placements in the first set. Errors of her forehand lost many points for her.

Mrs. Henry's net play was excellent with only one error. Miss Henry advanced to the net very seldom.

The hot sun and exertion proved almost too much for Patsy in the second set. The score was at 2-4 when she was almost overcome by heat. Taking advantage of the 10 minutes which is allowed for rest, she was able to return and finish the set.

FAVORITE. In the other semi-final match, Miss Evangeline McLennan, second seeded player and favorite to win the tournament, eliminated Miss Kate Jackson, of Bainbridge, who is seeded third. The match, which was marked by excellent striking on the part of both players, was an exhibition of unusual tennis.

Both girls have an excellent backhand, which was much in evidence. The forehand was hardly used. The volleying and placements of Miss McLennan were most valuable to her. Her net play is excellent. When Miss Jackson was asked about the result she said, "Well, she beat me 6-3, 6-2. I was just too good for me."

In the morning, Evangeline won from little Jeanne Fuller, 6-3, 6-1. Although the score does not indicate a hard fight, the points were played out long and hard with Miss Fuller putting up a game fight.

When darkness halted play Thursday afternoon, Miss Jackson and Margaret Cohen were playing a second round match. The match was a hard one, but Jackson won yesterday to complete play. Miss Jackson then won from Louise Richardson, placed, 6-3, 6-3, thereby advancing to the quarter-finals.

OTHER MATCHES. Other quarter-final matches were between Mrs. Bill Henry and Mrs. Jane Collingsworth and between Margaret Smith and Patsy Henry. Mrs. Henry defeated Mrs. Collingsworth, 6-2, 6-1. Patsy played a very good match with Margaret, 6-0, 6-0. Mrs. Collingsworth had previously won from Sarah Rosen.

Davis Cupmen Meet Aussies At Wimbledon

By Gayle Talbot.

Associated Press Sports Writer. WIMBLEDON, England, July 20.—(AP)—After Uncle Sam's four Davis Cup players held a final rehearsal today on Wimbledon's historic center court where they will open up tomorrow against Australia for the right to challenge the cup-holding English team, Captain R. Norris (Dick) Williams, the American squad leader, spoke confidently and enthusiastically of his team's prospects.

It was Williams' enthusiasm that Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood Jr., the singles players, and George M. Lott Jr. and Lester R. Stofen, the doubles team, would squeeze through three matches to two.

EASY VICTORY. Williams anticipates an easy victory for Lott and Stofen over the Australian combination of Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, and looks for a couple of opportunities to win with Shields and Wood.

"If either Shields or Wood beats Crawford, that would be pure velvet," Williams said.

The inter-tennis series opens with Shields pitted against Crawford in a match between the top-ranking players of their respective countries, and who will be the first to win.

During their final workout, Shields and Wood appeared in particularly fine form. They played just enough to keep their muscles loose, Lott and Stofen, who dropped a doubles decision to their compatriots yesterday, worked out more than they should.

The consensus here runs along the same line as Williams' opinion, making the Americans a well-defined favorite to eliminate Australia. The Aussies are expected to win the first round after a non-impressive conquest of the Czechoslovakian team. The Aussies won, three matches to two, with Crawford and McGraw losing to Rodgerio Menzel.

The Americans rule as favorites because of the fine showing all four made in the all-English championships last week. The Aussies are expected to win the first round after a non-impressive conquest of the Czechoslovakian team.

U. S. TRACKMEN MEET BRITONS WHITE CITY, England, July 20.—(AP)—A band of American college athletes, who are the line of sports supremacy that has swept toward England in recent weeks, completed training today preparatory to an encounter with the British and the field forces of Oxford and Cambridge universities tomorrow in the White City stadium.

The British record of 4:12 set by Lovelock in 1932 appeared in danger.

COMES BACK. Jim was down three games to love in the first set of his match with the first of the final match today. But if anybody is willing to give odds he can find many Halverstadt supporters.

Halverstadt usually plays a soft game but is capable of shaking when it's necessary. He is very accurate in placing short dropshots just over the net.

Match Will Be Played at Biltmore Tennis Club at 3 P. M.

By Jack Troy.

Malon Clay Courts, top-seeded city ace who is playing at the peak of his game, and Jimmy Halverstadt, Atlanta and Davidson star, seeded No. 2, meet today at 3 o'clock in the finals of the city tennis tournament at the Biltmore Club.

Courts ran through his semi-finals match with Dr. Kells (the alert reporter who last has learned how to spell the name correctly after several years of delusion) Boland yesterday with comparative ease, winning in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 8-6. Boland had a couple of opportunities to win the third set but couldn't produce the winning points at set-point. Boland was seeded No. 4.

Jim Halverstadt, playing with a vengeance that kept his supporters on edge until the fifth set, beat Jack Simpson, seeded No. 3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Halverstadt lobbed through most of the match but occasionally slipped into action and shot convincing drives just over the net.

Simpson, very tired as the fourth set ended, walked over to a bench, sat down and placed his head in a paper bag which he held firmly at his neck.

Spectators thought it was a joke and that Simpson was enacting a farce because of losing the fourth set and his advantage.

But the reason, as explained by Simpson, carries much logic: There is too much oxygen in the blood and when you hold the bag over your head you rebreath the carbon dioxide which reduces the oxygen and changes lactic acid set up by the exertion back to glucose sugar, which gives strength.

Simpson had a cramp in his leg and generally was tired. But the paper maneuver did away with the cramp and allowed him to relax.

Malon Potuck and Ronald Keppie will engage in an exhibition match at 5 o'clock that should prove very interesting. This is something of a strange match between two professionals.

Courts, who plays a game of speed, is favored to defeat Halverstadt in the first of the final match today. But if anybody is willing to give odds he can find many Halverstadt supporters.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

THE ENAMELED MURDER CASE. This is a tale of blood and rightly so, but I must admit my title is a bit far fetched. I have come to consider the dermal covering of the garfish as an enamel case, which I have connected here with the predatory instincts of the fish. I admire the gar as a survivor of the primitive group; beyond that point admiration gives place to a feeling of animosity, for the garfish are certainly doing way with our most desirable game fish at a great rate. As a matter of fact, the Georgia law permits the use of certain sized gill nets for controlling gar during certain months of the year. It is a predatory species but will never, I fear, be controlled effectively. They are too tough.

Actually, the gar has a covering of what is called thorns, plates that are bony in texture and finished with a smooth green covering like nothing else so much as baked-on enamel.

The general form of the body is round in cross-section, and long and slender, the slenderness being accentuated by the elongated beak of the fish. The beak consists of both jaws, and is armed with adequate teeth, needle-like in size and sharpness, capable of holding anything the fish happens to fancy for food, and as I know to my sorrow, also capable of producing a series of nicely spaced punctures on the human hand.

I have seen Georgia gar up to three and a half feet, although I am satisfied that they grow somewhat larger than this. If they happen to swim into a hole that is the favored haunt of game fish, the game fish had better vacate or be eaten. The gar is voracious and indiscriminate in feeding, having no thought for the conservation of game fish at all, seeking only to satisfy what seems to be an ever-present appetite.

There is a related form in the Mississippi valley called the alligator gar. I have seen one specimen of
